BAHAMAS' BLAND BOSS CAUGHT NAPPING

Resignation Surprises Windsor—But Shouldn't Have, He Says

By The Associated Press.

The colonial office in London announced last night that the Duke of Windsor has resigned as governor and commander-in-chief of the Bahamas, a post into which the former King Edward VIII stepped almost five years ago.

The resignation was announced without comment, but it was understood in London to mean that the Duke intends to quit public service to live in France where he married American-born Wallis Warfield Simpson, for whom he gave up his throne.

In Nassau a Government House spokesman said that the Duke "didn't know anything about it" until he was told by an Associated Press correspondent asking for comment and inquiring about the Duke's future plans.

DUKE ANNOUNCES RESIGNATION

Later, however, the Duke announced that he has resigned after serving for longer than four and one-half years as governor of the Bahama Islands, a tiny colonial outpost of the mighty empire of which he once was king.

He said he had made no immediate plans for the future after he relinquishes his post in April.

He added, that he and his American-born duchess, for whose love he relinquished the crown, will remain at Nassau for at least another month.

The news of the duke's resignation caught Nassau by complete surprise.

The duke had kept his plans a secret even from his household staff, it was explained, and the government house spokesman reported that the announcement in London surprised the duke.

It was explained that the duke himself was somewhat surprised by the announcement because he did not expect it to be made until April.

NO OCCASION FOR SURPRISE

The Duke pointed out that he has served for nearly five years as governor of the Bahamas, and declared that the announcement of his resignation should occasion no surprise. He declared that when he leaves office at the end of April, he will have served within three and one-half months of completing "the five-year period of normal, maximum tenure of a colonial governorship.

The Duke will be succeeded, the colonial office said, by W. L. Murphy, 58-year-old colonial secretary to Bermuda who on several occasions has served as acting governor.

The Duke of Windsor would have completed next Aug. 17 five years as governor of a tiny segment of the British empire over which he ruled as King-Emperor nearly a year before abdicating Dec. 10, 1936.

Colonial governors normally are appointed for five-year terms, but the surprise with which the announcement was met indicated most persons expected him to continue in the work which appeared to have been the most satisfactory activity of a career which, from birth, had been hemmed in closely by precedent that often irked him.

Authoritative sources in Nassau, who said it was surprising he quit with the end of his term so near, praised his administration for giving the Bahamas a "greater measure of prosperity" and bettering the lot of its workers.

The Duke is a very rich man. Queen Victoria left him wealth and he draws a large income from the Duchy of Cornwall, his private property.

Reds Sever Pocket In Prussia

Seven Towns Seized On 27-Mile Front In 7-Mile Breakthrough

By ROMNEY WHEELER.

LONDON, Friday, March 16.—(AP)—Russian shock troops sliced the German East Prussian pocket into two vulnerable segments by a seven-mile breakthrough yesterday to the coast of the Frisches Haff (lagoon) in a bitter mop-up prelude to the coming central offensive toward Berlin.

The Russians reached the coast at Heide-Waldburger and captured that village eight miles southwest of Koenigsberg after it had changed hands repeatedly in the bitter fighting since last January when the Soviets first took it.

STRONGHOLDS THREATENED

Six other localities were seized on a 27-mile front opposite Brandenburg, Heiligenbeil and Braunsberg, last big German strongholds besides Koenigsberg still in enemy hands.

Heide-Waldburger is five miles northeast of Brandenburg. The Russians also captured Kobbelbude, five miles southeast of Brandenburg.

Threatening to divide the Nazi pocket yet again, the Russians also captured the four-way junction town of Bladiau, six miles northeast of Heiligenbeil and only about three miles from the coast, and at the lower end of the front took Eisenberg, six miles southeast of Heiligenbeil, and Vogelsang, four miles southeast of Braunsberg.

More than 1,000 Germans were captured, the bulletin said, in this fierce struggle east of the besieged Gdynia-Danzig pocket.

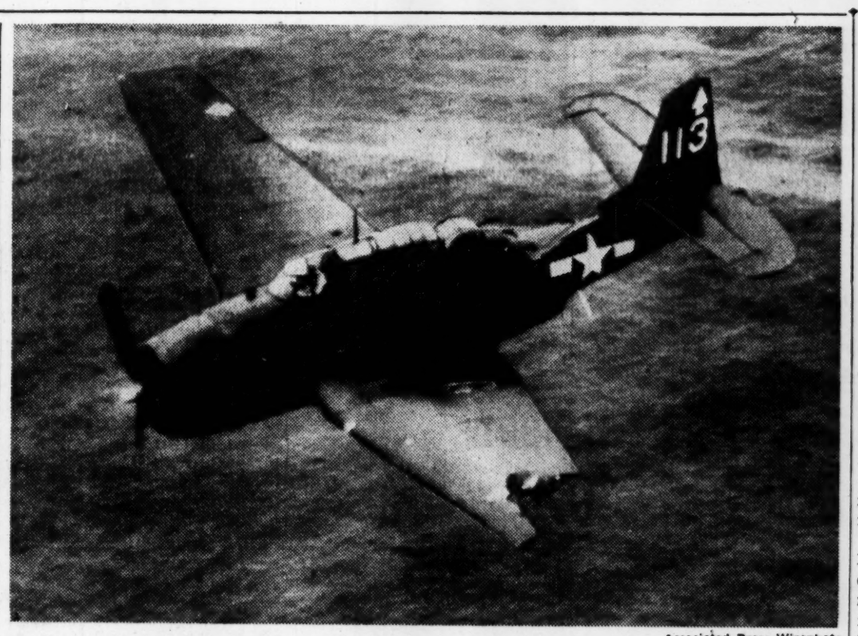

Enemy broadcasts said German planes had destroyed with eight direct hits a Russian-held bridge spanning the Oder river near Lebus, 32 miles east of Berlin, and said the impression was growing that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, First White Russian Army commander, "does not feel sufficiently strong to unleash his grand-scale offensive."

PRELUDES TO DRIVE

Previous Nazi reports said Zhukov had pushed at least 100,000 men across the Oder on the road to Berlin, whose outskirts were lashed anew today by 2,100 American planes slamming some 3,500 tons of explosives into enemy military targets.

The Soviet clean-up of East Prussia and the combined smashes at the ports of Gdynia and Danzig to the west were regarded as the preludes to the coming great offensive toward Berlin and Dresden, Saxon capital, but the Germans and Russians alike reported savage fighting in Hungary and Slovakia and the Nazis told of fierce Russian assaults near Stettin, at the mouth of the Oder river, and at Kolberg, surrounded Baltic port in overrun Pomerania.

The Nazi garrison at Kolberg has rejected two Russian surrender demands, Berlin said.

100 MILES ON A WING AND PRAYER—With a portion of one wing torn off and the tail section damaged when the plane above it was hit by antiaircraft fire, this Navy torpedo bomber was kept in the air for more than 100 miles from Chichi Jima, Bonin Islands, before it went down at sea. A destroyer rescued the crew from the water.

5 Armies Strike on Long Front

Drive Beyond Rhine Gains Mile; Sweeps 4 More German Towns

PARIS, Friday, March 16.—(AP) The U. S. First Army has deepened its Rhine bridgehead to six miles, seizing command of more than a mile of the great six-lane military highway to the Ruhr, and the Germans said five American armies are striking along 235 miles of the blazing western front.

The drive yesterday beyond the Rhine gained more than a mile during the day, swept up four more German towns and stabbed into five others. The Germans said the new U. S. 15th Army had sprung into action on the bridgehead, where 100,000 American soldiers now were massed.

The U. S. Seventh Army broke a long lull with a general assault on a 50-mile front from the Saar to the Rhine in a synchronized attack with the U. S. Third Army, and gained three miles or more, driving the Germans into retreat to the Siegfried line.

The U. S. Third Army smashed six miles south from its newly won Moselle river bridgehead near Coblenz in an offensive that was cutting in 80 miles or so behind the Siegfried line facing the Seventh Army front.

Already the push had sealed off the Rhine transit city of Coblenz, was nearing the Rhine south of the city, was pinching off the enemy's "little Ruhr"—the Saar basin—and was challenging the Nazis' last 150-mile grip on the Rhine's west bank.

The Third Army was by far the deepest into Germany of any Allied Army in the west. As it closed on Boppard, an ancient Rhine center six miles south of Coblenz, it was 80 miles north of the Saar border, and nearly 70 miles west of the enemy frontier.

It was disclosed officially that the Ninth Army had been sending patrols across the Rhine in the area north of Duisberg and that they had clashed with the enemy on the east bank from time to time before withdrawing.

The Germans, who also have sent patrols across the river to the Allied side, obviously seizing an opportunity afforded by these patrol clashes to bolster homefront morale, claimed a Ninth

331,000 American Bombs Rub Out Berlin Army Staff Headquarters

LONDON, Friday, March 16.—(AP)—The German army's general staff headquarters near Berlin was smashed yesterday in one phase of a 2,100-plane American raid which was followed last night by the 24th consecutive RAF night bombing of the enemy capital. The attacks concluded one of the biggest and most successful days of the war for the Allied Air Force. The American bombers sowed 3,500 tons of high explosives and incendiaries in the vicinity of Berlin, including the German army's nerve center at Zossen, 20 miles south, where some 650 especially-briefed bombardiers of the Eighth Air Force had little trouble picking out the target in clear weather. Smashing into the headquarters went 6,000 American bombs and 325,000 incendiaries.

The visual bombing of Zossen, where the highest ranking officers of the Wehrmacht were believed engrossed in attempting to run the war on both the eastern and western fronts, probably will rank among the best accomplished by the Eighth Air Force, its officers said. Returning crewmen were jubilant over the success of the mission.

Antiaircraft fire, though heavy at other points near Berlin, was meager at Zossen. Sixteen bombers and three fighters were reported missing from the Eighth's operations yesterday.

"While part of the German army general staff headquarters at Zossen is deep underground," a staff officer of the Eighth said, "today's attack by about 650 Flying Fortresses and Liberators was aimed at paralyzing the army nerve center through destruction

Invasion Fleet 'Sighted,' Japs Fear Doorstep Blow

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(UP)—Enemy broadcasts reported today that an American invasion fleet had been sighted north of Iwo island, possibly preparing for a new landing on the immediate approaches to Japan. They said also that the British Pacific fleet seemed to be joining the bombardment of southwestern Mindanao in the southern Philippines. Openly anxious over the air raid situation after tremendous American Superfortress firebomb attacks on its three greatest cities, Japan announced a plan for "voluntary" evacuation of non-essential civilians from Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Osaka and Kobe.

The government was forming a "civilian special attack corps" to aid in defense against an invasion and, in the meantime, to strengthen the antiair raid defense system.

It was indicated that the special attack corps would be a suicide organization pledged to go to certain death if necessary to carry out any assigned duty.

Tokyo reports that Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso conferred for three hours yesterday on the war situation with Japan's elder statesmen, who are former premiers or others who have held high office.

It was announced that the Osaka and Fukuoka prefecture editions of two big Tokyo newspapers would be published in one plant. Yesterday it was announced that six Tokyo newspapers would be published in one plant.

The BBC quoted reports that the Tokyo stock exchange had been closed. Presumably closure would be due to air raid damage affecting either the exchange directly or stocks listed.

The report that an American fleet had been sighted north of Iwo was given in a German Transocean agency dispatch dated Tokyo and broadcast from Berlin. There was no confirmation from any Allied source.

Both the Transocean agency

Coal Operators Spike Lewis Pact Demands

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(UP)—The soft coal operators have agreed unanimously to reject flatly all but three of John L. Lewis' new contract demands, an operator revealed tonight.

Unless the operators soften their position in the 16 days remaining before expiration of the present contract, Lewis is considered virtually certain to order his United Mine Workers to strike.

Among the contract terms rejected is the demand for a royalty of 10 cents a ton which the UMW planned to use for insurance and hospitalization funds for union members.

The government is preparing, at Lewis' request, to take a vote among the miners March 28 to see if they want to strike in event his demands are not met. Their past policy has been "no contract, no work."

Advised of the operators' decision, a high administration official said he considered it impossible for the operators and miners to reach agreement on a contract by April 1. Emphasizing that coal production must not stop, he estimated that a strike of five days duration would shut down 1,000 war plants.

He considered it likely that Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins may ask Lewis over the weekend to agree to a one-month extension of the present contract to permit additional negotiating time.

The three contract demands which the operators decided not to reject involve underground travel pay, shift differentials, and vacation pay. They met Lewis' terms on these only partially.

An operator said that the concessions on these demands would increase the cost of production by at least 25 cents a ton and added that the operators would demand higher prices from the Office of Price Administration to compensate.

The government is believed prepared to seize the mines at a moment's notice if necessary. Coal Administrator Harold L. Ickes has warned repeatedly that there can be no halt in production. The government official said the Interior Department does not want to conduct the seizure. He said that if one is necessary, it probably will be carried out by the Army.

Here is what the operators agreed to offer at tomorrow's joint conference:

Two weeks vacation with $100 pay for all miners in service five years or longer; one week with $50 for the rest. All of them get only $50 now. Lewis had asked a flat $100 vacation pay for all.

A differential of four cents an hour for workers on the second shift, and eight cents for those on the third. Lewis had asked 10 and 15 cents.

Straight pay rates for all the time spent underground traveling to and from the mine face. Lewis had asked full pay with time and a half for overtime.

Hitler Acts To Avert Full Surrender And Leave Door Ajar for Next War

In this article, coming on the heels of Mr. Churchill's statement that the war in Europe may end this summer "or even sooner," L. S. B. Shapiro reveals Hitler's plan to balk the Allies of a full-scale German surrender as a final propaganda gesture and the opening move for World War III. Reporting this from Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters, this correspondent writes: "This plan must be defeated."

BY L. S. B. SHAPIRO

AT FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS, March 15.—(NANA)—The battlefront was quieted somewhat in the northern Rhineland, but on both sides of the river there is much activity. Marshal Montgomery's armies are preparing for what is expected to be the last great battle for Germany, while Von Rundstedt is deploying his remaining ground forces, particularly his artillery, to make our mass crossing of the Rhine as expensive as possible.

The battle probably will be fought in two phases—first the actual crossing, followed immediately by a build-up of our bridgeheads into powerful bases for striking deep into Germany, and, secondly, the battle to break out of the bridgehead. There may be a considerable lull between the two phases, but if both proceed according to plan the battle will be the last before a junction with the Russians and the end of organized German resistance.

What surrender pattern will be followed when the end of organized resistance comes? This question has no doubt been closely studied in the light of present German dispositions and the overhaul of Wehrmacht's command system since the attempt on Hitler's life last July. It is probably not expected that there will be a mass surrender of German forces on the whole western front. Hitler has revamped his command system in so ingenious a manner that not even Von Rundstedt can safely deliver over his forces. Hitler and Himmler have diluted the Wehrmacht command with their personal followers to such an extent that Von Rundstedt is powerless to make a surrender move.

The end may be envisioned something like this:

A German division cut off from physical communication with the high command will surrender en masse. Then the corps will follow a few days later. Perhaps an army commander will throw in his hand when he feels his position hopeless enough or his own head safe enough from Hitler's wrath. The process will be piecemeal, with generals surrendering their formations to Allied unit commanders immediately in the vicinity. It may be a month or more before complete disintegration becomes apparent.

The last stand not for the defense of the Reich but for the defense of the Nazi party may be made in the mountains of southern Bavaria. The process of stocking this area with munitions and food for a long siege has probably been going on several weeks. The movements of Hitler's remaining S.S. formations indicate that they are conveniently disposed for a rapid retreat into these mountainous positions.

Thus Hitler proposes to deny to the Allies the historical impact of a sudden victory. There will be no single date on which historians can pin the end of the war unless the Allied governments arbitrarily nominate such a day for legal purposes. Hitler is shaping his defeat in order to confer on coming German generations the illusion that resistance never ceased, and to provide a rallying point for the eventual upsurge of the German spirit and ambition.

It is important to the future peace of the world that this plan be defeated.

Dick Heads 7th War Loan In Georgia

Mann Will Direct Fulton Sales; Coyne, U. S. Chief, Talks

Jackson P. Dick, 16th district chairman for the Sixth War Loan drive, will head the Seventh War Loan throughout Georgia, replacing Robert A. McCord, officials announced at an organizational banquet here last night. Al Thornwell, former Fulton county leader, with John O. Childs, district co-chairman during the Sixth, will head the Seventh campaign in the district.

Other changes in the war finance organization include these: Earl Mann, former publicity director, will lead Fulton county bond sales, and Jim Stafford becomes publicity and advertising director for the 16th district. Stanley Hastings, of Decatur, will remain leader of DeKalb county.

Robert W. Coyne, field director of the War Finance Division, of Washington, appeared at a luncheon of payroll savings leaders, attended by officials throughout the state, and at a dinner last night at the Atlanta Athletic Club, when the roster of officers for this drive was reported.

GEORGIA PRAISED

Coyne praised Georgia as a leader among states which exceeded "E" bond quotas during the Sixth War Loan. Citing the increased national goal of people's bonds to be sold during the Seventh campaign ($4 billions as compared with $2.5 billions in the winter drive), the executive told district leaders and business management officials how to step up payroll savings investments by urging individual increase in bond purchases.

To meet the demand for small bonds, the drive period has been extended to three months, April through June. April will be considered the "advance drive," with emphasis on payroll investments. The major campaign begins in mid-May, Coyne pointed out. with a national objective of raising $14 billions. Georgia's quotas have not been set, he said.

PAYROLL BUYING

The 23 million persons employed by some 200,000 firms which participate in pay roll bond buying invest about $500,000,000 a month, Coyne said. He urged business management officials to "sell bonds to the people" by pointing out the active participation in the war accorded bond buyers. He also suggested sales as a measure of unity, and as a means of "teaching little people to save." He lauded the postwar

CROSBY, BERGMAN, TROTTI 'OSCARED'

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—(AP)—The movie capital's annual academy award function got underway in typical Hollywood fashion tonight—late—with more than 5,000 howling fans jamming Hollywood Boulevard to hail their heroes and heroines of the screen.

The industry crowned Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman as the best film performers of 1944 and acclaimed "Going My Way" the outstanding picture of the year.

Barry Fitzgerald, costar with Crosby in "Going" won the best supporting role award for actors, and Ethel Barrymore won the actress-supporting title for "None but the Lonely Heart."

DeKalb Jury Still Tied Up In Heinz Case

The Heinz case jury was still deadlocked early this morning and, as the hours of deliberation lengthened, it appeared that a mistrial was likely. The fate of Horace Blalock, Negro accused of the murder of Henry C. Heinz, Atlanta banker, had been in the jury's hands since 3:54 p. m. Wednesday.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night, the jury requested a recharge from Judge James C. Davis, presiding, on the credibility of witnesses. At the time, the foreman said the jury was hopelessly tied up. After the recharge, the judge sent the jurymen back. Later, when they had not reached a verdict, he instructed them to spend another night on cots in the courthouse.

The judge gave no indication as to how long he would keep the 12 men together. While the jury was deliberating last night, Judge Davis proceeded with the trials of other cases on the calendar.

Gen. Patrick Dies Of Luzon Wounds

EL PASO, Texas, March 15.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Edwin D. Patrick, commanding general of the Sixth Infantry Division and former chief of staff of the Sixth Army, has died of wounds suffered on an unreported date in Luzon, the War Department notified his wife here today.

Horse Guards Arrive For Philippine Action

First news of the arrival of the Governor's Horse Guards in the Philippines has been disclosed in an Associated Press dispatch.

The dispatch announced the arrival of the 40th Coast Artillery Brigade, of which the Horse Guards are a part.

The colorful and historic old Georgia National Guard cavalry troop once paraded Peachtree street for all military holidays. In the Army they are designated Headquarters and "C" Batteries, 101st Antiaircraft Artillery Automatic Weapons Battalion A-T (for air-transportable).

The 101st was the first American ground combat troops to land in New Guinea. The outfit landed at Port Moresby May 3, 1942, and was stationed at that base, the last Allied foothold in New Guinea, during the Battle of the Coral Sea.

There are about 600 Georgians in the battalion, more than 300 of whom are Atlantans. The battalion sailed overseas aboard the "Queen Mary" Feb. 18, 1942, and landed in Sydney, Australia, March 28, 1942.

Brig. Gen. Marvin Griffin, adjutant general of Georgia, who was a lieutenant colonel in the Army, is a former commanding officer of the battalion. The first commanding officer was Col. Joseph B. Fraser, of Hinesville, now commanding an antiaircraft group in Gen. Patton's Third Army in Germany.

In less than three weeks' action in Port Moresby during the early days of the Pacific war, the 101st was credited with shooting down 16 Japanese planes, and given an additional 18 probables. Since then the score has gone up steadily, but at a slower rate due to the inactivity of the Japanese air force.

The 101st moved from Port Moresby to Nadzab, New Guinea, in December, 1943, then to Finschaffen, New Guinea. Their latest jump has carried them to the Philippines.

Other units of the 101st are: The Georgia Hussars, from Savannah; the Liberty Independent Troop, of Hinesville, and Battery "D," from Bainbridge.

The Georgia Hussars are considered the oldest military organization in the United States, predating the Marine Corps by many years. Gen. James Edward Oglethorpe founded the Hussars on Yamacraw Bluff in Savannah, in 1736. Since their inception, the Hussars have fought in every war in which the United States has been engaged.

The Horse Guards were founded in 1885. During the First World War, they served as military police in Lemon, France, and were a part of the Rainbow Division.

value of small bond buying because it "integrates every heart and purse" and because bonds "insure a victory at home after victory on the military fronts."

War production continues at "stratospheric levels," with employment and wages "at a peak," Coyne said. He pointed out that "business is not as usual" and that the months ahead are now considered the "most critical for combating inflation."

"In war bonds lies the answer to that danger, inflation," he said.

Georgian Downs 'Looey,' Assumes His Danger Role

Marine Sgt. Earl G. Tuten, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Tuten, of Waresboro, tackled his lieutenant to keep him from danger on the Iwo Jima front lines and then faced Japanese fire in no-man's land to rescue two buddies, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Tuten, a Marine veteran of four years, spent seven days at the front as a member of a field artillery forward observer team. On the fifth day his team moved out to take a position in no-man's land, the dispatch stated.

"The Japs spotted us and gave us the works," the sergeant said. "We started back and noticed two of our men were missing."

When the Marine lieutenant in charge turned to go after them, Tuten tackled him.

"I figured he was more valuable than I," he said afterward.

Marine Tuten then went back for the men alone.

In January 1941 Earl Tuten quit junior high school in Waycross, lied to recruiting officers about his age and joined the Marines. At the outbreak of war in December he was sent to Australia.

When his age was discovered he was sent home, but he re-enlisted when the age limits were lowered. He was sent to the Pacific 14 months ago.

The Georgia sergeant has a younger brother in the Marines, Cpl. Donald Tuten, stationed in the Panama Canal Zone.

Pvt. Jack P. Turner Prisoner in Germany

Pvt. Jack P. Turner, 20, reported missing in action in Germany December 22, is a prisoner of war of the German government, it was revealed in a post card received March 13 from Stalag V-A.

Pvt. Turner

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell G. Turner, of 3175 W. Shadowlawn avenue, N. E., had received no announcement from the War Department as to his being a prisoner.

The postal card, written just after Christmas, told of a slight wound from which he is recovering.

A sophomore at Tech, Pvt. Turner was called into the enlisted reserve in March, 1943, and received his basic training at Camp Wheeler. Transferring to the air corps, he continued his training at Butler University in Indiana, going to Texas and eventually being reassigned to the infantry in July, 1944. He completed his training at Fort Jackson, S. C., and was sent to England in October, 1944.

Pvt. Turner's only brother, Lt. Russell G. Turner Jr., USNR, has been serving in the Pacific for some time.

While at Tech he was a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity and the Bulldog Club.

ETHERIDGE WROTE 'GOODBYE'

Premonition Told Judge He Would Die Suddenly

Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton superior court, who died last week, had a premonition he would meet death suddenly—just the way it came to him when a heart attack struck him while he was presiding at court.

And, having had the premonition, he made sure that he would tell a lot of his friends "goodbye." This came to light when the Fulton Daily Report published a letter from the judge dated Dec. 5, 1944. The letter follows:

Having passed the age of threescore years and 10, and having a heart ailment that may take me away without any notice, I am sure that I shall not have opportunity to say "goodbye" to lots of my friends when the hour of my departure arrives; so I am asking you to kindly publish a goodbye message for me in the columns of the Daily Report.

I want to express my good wishes for a long continued usefulness of your excellent paper, the very mention of which calls up vivid memories of my lifelong friend, James Kempton.

I want to say goodbye to my friends in the courthouse and to the county employes in general. What my association with them has been through all the years. I cannot name them one by one; I cannot even mention all the departments in the county.

I do mention my associations, the judges, their secretaries, bailiffs and marshals; the court officers, sheriff and deputies, clerk and deputies, solicitor and assistants; the judges on the second floor with all their clerks and deputies; the hosts of men and women on the first floor; the judges, marshals and clerks of the civil court; the adult probation officer and assistants; the health and school departments; old Sid Truitt and his department; dear Mrs. Lyle, our librarian; our lovely ladies in the treasurer's office; the county commissioners and county heads of departments and the employes.

Well, just say "goodbye" to all of them; fellows like old Reece Perry and Comer Davis and others in that office; Frank Eaves and all his crowd; Mose Holland; the telephone operators who have been so kind to me; Al Martin, Bub Clarke, Oscar Jones, Chief Mathieson and all his men; all those fellows in the basement and on the elevators, and all over the courthouse. I can't name them all.

This courthouse is full of men and women who have been my friends through the years. They have made me happy and I love them, and this is to tell them so, and to say goodbye.

I am going into eternity unafraid, yes, joyfully. I don't know what it will be like, but the One in Whom I have placed my trust said He was going there to prepare a place for me; and if He prepares it, that's enough. I know I shall be happy for I shall be with Him, also with hosts of friends and loved ones who have gone on before.

Goodbye to all of you. Please remember me as your friend, one who loved you, and who now, by the grace of God, is waiting to greet you on the other shore.

PAUL S. ETHERIDGE.

MARRY FOR LOVE

'Don't Wed For Pity,' Girls Told

CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa., March 15. — (UP) — Eighteen-year-old Doris Jane Ruth was busy tonight making final plans for her marriage to a wounded war veteran, but paused to give a word of advice to girls who may face the same problem she encountered.

Doris Jane speaks with authority. She will walk down a church aisle on March 31 to wed Aubrey Holland, 24-year-old wearer of the Purple Heart and the Silver Star, who lost both legs at Cassino.

Her advice: "Don't marry out of pity. Marry for love."

"There's nothing that kills a man's spirit as much as knowing he is pitied," she said. "If a girl really loves her man, she has no doubts—no matter how badly he's injured—but if she begins to feel more sorry for him than anything else, she'd better call it quits."

HARDEST TO TAKE

Holland arrived at Walter Reed hospital last June, with pneumonia, a broken arm and — hardest to take—both legs gone. His first job was to write to Doris Jane, with whom he had an "understanding more than an engagement."

"I'm pretty badly banged up," he wrote from his bed in the Washington hospital. "You'd better not wait."

Doris Jane's protests reached him by return mail.

"I still love you, no matter what's happened, or what's left of you."

She followed her letter with a trip to Washington and by the time she left the young private their wedding plans were arranged. They took out a license Tuesday, three days after Holland's arrival here from the hospital.

WALKS WITH CANE

The veteran of three years' service walks so well with the artificial limbs he now wears that he will need only the aid of a cane for the walk down the aisle. After a short honeymoon, he returns to his old job at the John Woods Manufacturing Company.

Doris Jane said Holland had feared he might be a burden on her for the rest of her life.

"That's just plain silly and I showed him why," she declared. "He can earn a living, he can go anywhere, and our lives won't be any different than if this hadn't happened.

"I told him a girl doesn't stop loving a fellow just because he loses an arm or a leg. He is still there, and that's all that counts."

The bride-to-be said she and Holland had rented a three-room apartment in Conshohocken, and that she would spend her time "keeping house and keeping Aubrey happy."

Her fiance accompanies her on all buying expeditions, she said, and has an equal say in the purchase of furniture and all household goods.

4 Destroyer Escorts Sink Nazi Sub in Mid-Atlantic

AN EAST COAST PORT, March 15.—(AP)—Four American destroyer escorts sank a German submarine in mid-Atlantic recently with a series of depth charge attacks, Vice Admr. Jones Ingram, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Atlantic fleet, announced today.

The escorts—Otter, Hubbard, Varian and Hayter—blasted the raider with thunderous explosions, bringing parts of bodies and blood-stained debris to the surface. There were no German survivors. The date and location of the attack were not given.

First Freed Americans Reach Mid-East Port

CAIRO, March 15.—(AP)—Arrival at a Middle East port of a "first contingent" of more than 1,000 United States soldiers freed from German prison camps by the Russian offensive was announced today by American headquarters in Cairo.

A statement said the troops would be refitted, given medical attention, and examined so that they "may continue their journey as expeditiously as possible." Two other shiploads of rescued Allied prisoners reached the port earlier in the week.

LONDON, March 15.—(AP)—The Berlin radio announced today that the Swedish ship Drottningholm sailed from Goeteborg this morning with 900 passengers, mostly British civilian internees and Argentine and Turkish diplomats homeward bound from Germany.

24-Cent Meat Allotment In Britain May Be Cut

LONDON, March 15.—(AP)—Britons, who can buy only 24 cents' worth of meat apiece each week under the present rationing system, faced the prospect today of receiving even less in the near future.

The food situation now is as serious as it has been at any time during the war—with the possible exception of the days when the submarine menace was greatest—and a Washington announcement that the United States will send less meat to Britain is causing deep concern among housewives.

One reason behind the food shortage here is the severe drouth in Australia and New Zealand.

Alaskan Road Scrapping Is News to Stimson

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP) Secretary of War Stimson said today he knew of no plans to abandon the Alaskan highway in Canada.

He was asked at a news conference about the statement of Senator Magnuson, Democrat, Washington, in the senate yesterday that he understood the highway, built to form a military link between the United States and Alaska, would be abandoned. "I know of no such plan," Stimson replied.

GERMANS RUSH V-1, V-2 SECRETS OUT OF RUSSIAN ARMY'S PATHWAY

STOCKHOLM.—(NANA)—With Marshal Zhukov's forces not many miles away, the Germans are evacuating Peenemuende and Zinnowitz, the experimental stations on the Baltic island of Usedom, at which the V-1 and V-2 weapons were designed.

This news, which reached here through private channels from Germany, is confirmed by the Berlin correspondent of the Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau. He reports that Russian commandos recently attempted a seaborne attack against both stations.

It is easy to understand that the German high command is in haste to prevent its V-bomb secrets falling into Russian hands.

Research laboratories and documents relating to V-bombs are reported to have been removed. Mainau, in the Lake Constance area of Austria, and the central German mountains are mentioned as possible destinations.

Recent experiments are believed to have been directed towards developing a predictor whereby V-2 rockets might be radio-directed.

McGill Lunches With Harriman In Moscow

CIGARET WOES CAUSE BROKEN NOSE, 14 STITCHES AND CASE IN COURT

The cigaret shortage finally put a case in recorder's court.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Reynolds, of 478 Central avenue, have seven stitches in the head each and Mrs. Reynolds has a broken nose. It's all attributable to the cigaret shortage.

The police reported that the two went into the Jones Coffee Pot at Pryor and Trinity streets and bought four of the precious smokes for a nickel. Then Mrs. Reynolds, the report said, went into a phone booth to make a complaint to OPA.

According to the report, when Mrs. Reynolds came out of the phone booth, F. M. Jones, 247 Pryor street, connected with the establishment, allegedly threw a bottle or some similar object and struck Mrs. Reynolds in the face. Her nose was broken and seven stitches had to be taken in her face at Grady hospital.

The police further reported that Reynolds then threw a bottle at Jones, whereupon Jones turned on him with a hammer. Seven stitches were also taken in Reynolds' head at Grady hospital.

Tried in recorder's court yesterday, Jones was bound over on two charges of assault and battery.

State Plans To Spend $5,000,000 on Roads

By M. L. ST. JOHN.

The State Highway Department this month is starting the third step of a proposed five-year program to recondition Georgia's highways, collapsing under wartime strain and old age.

The department, which carried on a 3½-million-dollar repair project the first year of the Arnall administration and a five-million-dollar repair job the second year, plans to spend approximately five million dollars this summer resurfacing state highways, State Director Ryburn Clay said yesterday.

"Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been wasted on highways in the past because they were not repaired," Clay said. "When roads are not repaired in time the repair jobs become reconstruction projects.

PAST POLICY SCORED

"Apparently the state has in the past merely built roads and then left them to take care of themselves, using repair money to build still more highways, which, in turn, were neglected. That is not the policy of the present highway board. It is good business to keep the highways in good condition."

The department will let contracts March 31 for one million dollars worth of road and bridge repair jobs. Largest project on this letting is the widening and resurfacing of Campbellton road in Fulton county, a distance of 13.8 miles at an estimated cost of $150,000.

Then, on March 30, the department will let a contract for widening and resurfacing another portion of the Roosevelt military highway between Atlanta and Fort Benning—16 miles in Troup county.

COST ESTIMATE, $700,000

Soon thereafter the department will ask bids for the 14-mile section in Coweta county. Total cost of the 30-mile strip is estimated at $700,000. This will leave approximately 50 miles between LaGrange and Columbus to be repaired.

Clay said virtually all of the contracts for heavy maintenance work would be let before July so that contractors could complete their jobs during the summer.

Continuing the highway repair program at the present rate of five million dollars a year for heavy work, the department should be able to put all state highways in good condition within two years after the present summer, Clay stated. This would not include bridges, however.

GOOD BRIDGES NEEDED

"Georgia is in dire need of good bridges," the director observed. "I doubt if we have a dozen first-class bridges in the state. Even Atlanta, the center of the south, is in sad state insofar as bridges for highways leading into the city."

Georgia, whose road construction program has been limited to a few military highways during the war, is planning to step out into a big highway building program in the postwar period, Clay asserted.

He said the state is hoping to be able to match 34 million dollars in federal funds for a three-year road-building program after the war. This would give Georgia a 68-million-dollar highway program.

State Income Tax Record Indicated

More persons filed state income taxes this year than ever before in Georgia history, State Revenue Collector J. Eugene Cook estimated as the deadline passed last night.

However, Cook held to his prediction that revenue from state income taxes would decrease approximately $3,000,000 this year as compared with 1944. The loss will be caused by taxpayers deducting their federal income tax payment, Cook said.

The collector said it would be several weeks before a complete report of the number of taxpayers and revenue could be announced.

FINALLY—Peach trees are growing on Peachtree street. After many years of wondering where the name Peachtree street came from, Davison's provided the answer yesterday when four blossoming trees were "planted" along the sidewalk in front of the two main entrances to the store. Davison's models, Miss Celeste Greer, Miss Margaret Murrah and Miss Ruth Gervers, stand lightly on edge of a box holding one of the trees.

Arnall Leaves Capital After Day of Calls

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Gov. Arnall left Washington for Atlanta tonight after a round of conferences with administration officials and members of the Georgia congressional delegation.

Winding up his discussions with Attorney General Biddle, which was the main purpose of his visit to Washington, the Governor devoted most of the day to calling on friends in the government. First he went to the Department of Commerce for a friendly visit with Secretary Wallace, and later he had lunch with Jonathan Daniels, a member of the White House secretariat.

During the afternoon Arnall went to the capitol for a series of calls on members of the state delegation, including both Sen. George and Sen. Russell.

The Governor said there was no significance to any of his calls today. He was merely seizing an opportunity for visiting around after winding up his business at the Department of Justice.

Before catching a night train to Atlanta he again expressed the feeling that the United States supreme court will sustain the petition he filed earlier in the year asking the tribunal to assume original jurisdiction in an action brought by the state against 17 of the nation's leading railroads. These railroads he has charged with a conspiracy to maintain discriminatory freight rates in Georgia and other southern states.

After his arrival in Washington yesterday, Arnall spent some time with Attorney General Biddle going over plans for the next step in the case. He made known that if the highest court rules against him, he will file a new action in the United States district court in Georgia and subsequently bring the case to the supreme court on appeal.

GLAMOR FOR MAIN STEM

Mayor and Models 'Plant' Peach Trees

Peachtree street finally has peach trees.

The graceful and blossoming trees that have become almost a trade mark for Georgia, were "planted" yesterday by Davison's in front of the two main entrances to the store, at Peachtree and Ellis streets.

They were planted to beautify the famed Atlanta business and residential thoroughfare and to correct a misnomer that has caused tourists for years to ask, "Why did you Atlantans name it Peachtree street when there aren't any peach trees?"

Chess Lagomarsino, publicity director of Davison's, who, as he termed it, "dreamed" up the idea of peach trees on Peachtree street, said if the four original trees wither and die, they will be replaced and other methods used to keep the trees alive.

Several Atlanta nurserymen are being consulted on the proper fertilizer and pruning methods to insure a healthy growth.

The roots of the trees are boxed in white crates, three feet square, with concentrated fertilizer mixed among the dirt around the roots. As peach trees go, the trees aren't large. They stand 10 feet high in the boxes and have been radically pruned so that low hanging limbs will not obstruct the sidewalk and street.

Lagomarsino said that if the trees do not grow in the boxes, he would obtain permission to dig up a small section of the sidewalk and plant the trees below the surface.

Mayor Hartsfield posed for pictures to signify the city's approval of giving reason to the name Peachtree street.. Three pretty models, Miss Ruth Gervers, of 108 Rugby avenue, College Park; Miss Celeste Greer, of 40 Northwood avenue, and Miss Margaret Murrah, of 999 Drewry street, N. E., posed with the mayor. One present 1 him a well known soft drink, to "cool" the mayor after his "strenuous" labor of "planting" the trees.

The city's approval was voiced by the mayor when he said, "Peachtree street is Atlanta's just as Broadway belongs to New York, Vine to Hollywood and Canal street to New Orleans. Anything that is done to glamorize, or beautify Peachtree street, will help Atlanta."

There were no speeches and no ceremony at the "planting," but about 200 passers gathered to watch as the mayor and the models posed among the blossoms of belated peach trees on Peachtree street.

Mandalay Vise Chokes Jap Corridor to South

MANDALAY, March 15.—(UP)—The Japanese position in the Mandalay area was deteriorating rapily today, and troops of the 19th Indian Division still battling for isolated Fort Dufferin could hear the artillery barrages of other British troops closing in from the southwest.

All of Mandalay north of Fort Dufferin has been cleared of the enemy and the fall of the stronghold itself appeared imminent as the empire troops enveloped it from both sides and thwarted Jap plans to hold open a corridor to the south part of the city.

A strongpoint near the southwest corner of the fort was taken yesterday, but the enemy regained it in a counterattack. On the whole, however, Japanese resistance appeared to be slackening and belief grew that all of Mandalay soon would be in British hands.

Today's southeast Asia command communique stated meanwhile that Second Division troops who broke out from their Irrawaddy bridgehead southwest of Mandalay had made "good progress" against disorganized resistance.

These troops were last reported 30 miles from Mandalay, but last night artillery of this division could be heard in the city, and two huge fires—believed to be burning Japanese ammunition dumps—could be seen south of here.

U.S. May Defer More Workers In Transport

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP) The government's policy committee on occupational deferments recommended today a drastic increase in exemptions for key transportation workers under 30.

This would be the first break in the month-old limit on deferments for younger men. The rule has been deferments for no more than 30 per cent of an industry's men in the under 30 group.

The committee's action resulted from a plea by the Office of Defense Transportation that the transportation industry, already facing a critical manpower shortage, might break down this year without liberalization of deferment policies.

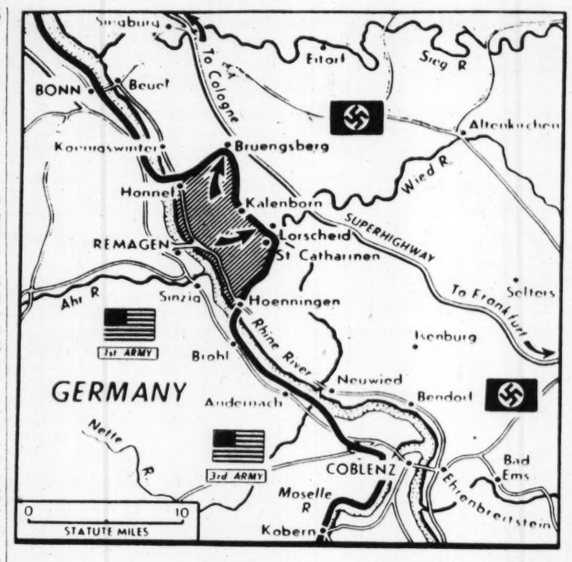

Under the committee's recommendation, the limit in the transportation field would go up as high as 90 per cent for some operations.

The number of deferments recommended in the various transportation fields and the percentage of their total in 2-A or 2-B draft classifications:

Railroads, 40,800, 85 per cent; airlines, 4,860, 90 per cent; inland waterways, 90 per cent for Great Lakes and 80 per cent for other operations.

No action was taken today toward increasing deferments for key personnel in the motor transportation field.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in The Constitution Want Ads.

ARROWS INDICATE RHINE BRIDGEHEAD PRESSURE

Superhighway Reported Crossed as 100,000 Troops Advance

SHAEF

Army attempt to cross the Rhine had been smashed.

CROSSING IS SOLID

The Rhine crossing by the First Army at Remagen, where the Americans now hold 11 miles or more of the east bank, was so solid that it was announced officially the danger of its being dislodged now was past.

The Germans were throwing in tank-led counterattacks, trying to hold back the tide from the superhighway, which the enemy himself said the Americans had completely severed at the northeast corner of the bridgehead.

One force driving for the highway—over which the Germans are shuttling forces and massing troops east and northwest of the bridgehead—captured a junction of six highways about four miles east of the Germans' fallen northern anchor of Honnef.

One force then battled a half mile or so east into Rottbitze, while another fought on more than a mile north into Aegidienberg, eight miles northeast of the Remagen bridge and 1,000 yards from the super military highway.

Enemy accounts said the U. S. Ninth Army had tried to storm across the Rhine into the Ruhr at Duisburg, but was thrown back in hand-to-hand combat.

HODGES IN PUSH

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges seemed to be mounting a big push, for American troops fought a mile north of fallen Honnef, seized Rhoendorf and were within five miles of clearing the last low hills before the plain, leading 19 miles north to the southern Ruhr basin.

The deepest penetration was into Steinshardt, six miles east of Ramagen bridge, where stiff fighting broke out after Americans had overrun the near-by towns of Hesseln, Lorscheid and Hahnen.

Lorscheid, a mile northwest of Steinshardt, fell only after the Germans struck back with six King Tiger tanks. The Germans then fell back into Strodt, a mile east, and the Americans fought half way to that town.

So far, however, the Germans had been unable to aim a single major counterblow and it appeared they were hard put to marshal their forces over cratered highways and bomb-wrecked villages east of the Rhine.

GERMAN FIRE WANES

At the same time, German fire on the bridgehead had dropped off sharply, testimony to the effectiveness of the steady expansion operations which have shoved enemy gunners beyond easy range.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said the Germans were building up strength east of the bridgehead. That might be to contain the bridgehead or to muster the force for one big attempt to crush the all-important American foothold east of the Rhine.

Between the assault of the U. S. Third Army from the north, and the U. S. Seventh Army's drive from the south, Hitler's hold on the Saar and the near-by Palatinate seemed to be slipping fast.

Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch sent his Seventh Army into its first major action since the Colmar pocket fight at 1 a. m., striking silently without the usual artillery preparation.

Only light resistance met the first assault forces, and the enemy began at once to fall back into the Siegfried line behind thick minefields. Then massed American guns opened up with a thunderous barrage and only scattered fire met the attackers.

AERIAL

of administration buildings, vital records, barracks, utilities and communications and transport systems. It was the first time the high command headquarters in Germany had been attacked by Eighth Air Force bombers."

Meanwhile, the RAF was hurling 11-ton "townbusters" at western Germany, and the British planes came back after dark for blows at Berlin; Hagen, an industrial town on the edge of the Ruhr, and Misbourg, three miles east of Hannover, where an oil refinery was hit.

Some 6,000 to 7,000 planes were hurled against the Germans from the west, south and east, as a long-awaited break in the weather released Allied air power in near-record strength.

The sustained air assault was carried into its 32d consecutive day. The German radio flashed warnings throughout the evening that bomber formations were heading over western and northwestern Germany and that "spearheads" of the aerial formations were racing toward Brandenburg, the German capital's own province.

From Italy, American heavy bombers struck to within 65 miles southeast of Berlin in their deepest penetration of Germany while on the western front hundreds of medium and light bombers battled in support of ground forces. On the eastern front, too, Russian planes were in the air.

Savannah 'TVA' Bill Goes to Two Groups

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP) The senate agreed today to a compromise solution in the dispute over which of its committees will consider a bill to create a Missouri valley authority.

Under the agreement, the bill by Sen. Murray, Democrat, of Montana, will be considered by each of three committees—commerce, irrigation and agriculture—in that order.

Murray had first sought to switch the bill from the commerce committee, where it was originally assigned by Vice President Truman, and sent to the agriculture committee.

Chairman Bailey, Democrat, of North Carolina, of the commerce committee, opposed this and offered the compromise instead, which was acceptable to Murray.

After Murray and Bailey said they favored assignment of the measure to the three committees, Majority Leader Barkley declared:

"I have no objection to this particular solution, but I think it is a questionable practice to assign bills to two or three committees."

As a result of the change in assignment of the MVA measure, a bill by Sens. Russell, Democrat, of Georgia, and Maybank, Democrat, of South Carolina, to set up a Savannah valley authority was assigned to two committees—commerce and agriculture.

Russell said it was originally agreed that the Savannah bill would be referred to the same committee that got the MVA measure. He asked, however, since no irrigation is involved in the Savannah bill that it be referred only to commerce and agriculture.

ARNALL BACKS 'LITTLE TVA' PLAN FOR SAVANNAH RIVER DEVELOPMENT

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP)—Georgia's Gov. Arnall threw his support today behind a proposal for creating a Savannah River Authority.

Indorsement of the plan by the Governor came as he conferred with Sen. Russell, Democrat, Georgia, co-sponsor of the "Little TVA" along with Sen. Maybank, Democrat, South Carolina.

Arnall, preparing to return to Atlanta after a three-day visit here, declared that "the proposal is an exceedingly fine one and I am all for it."

He asserted that development of the river would "bring great benefits to the people of my state and adjoining areas," commenting that "it is high time the south, and particularly Georgia, begins to get some of these fine public power developments."

Russell and Maybank introduced legislation for creation of the authority yesterday, with production of electricity to be its principal function. Construction of a series of dams and hydro-electric plants is contemplated.

Arnall also visited Sen. George, Democrat, Georgia, and all of the state's representatives.

State Disease Rate Low in '45

With no epidemics so far this year, Georgia has been freer of disease in 1945 than in many years, Dr. Dan Bowden, head of the epidemiology division of the state health department, said.

The death rate has been cut almost in half in respiratory diseases since 1938, with widespread use of sulfa drugs and pneumonia serum, Bowden added.

There were only 454 cases of influenza reported in the first six weeks of 1945, as compared with 6,754 cases for the same period of time in 1944. Georgia had 36,021 cases of influenza in 1941. There were 213 cases of pneumonia, as compared with 487 last year.

Close Union Vote

The National Labor Relations Board reported yesterday that an election by employes of the Savannah Planing Mill Company, Savannah, Ga., had failed by one vote to approve the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers' Union No. 897 as collective bargaining agent. The vote was 10 for the union and 11 against and the board dismissed petition of the union for recognition.

7 Die as Transport Crashes in Storm

SAN CARLOS, Cal., March 15.—(AP)—Seven men died as a Navy twin-engine transport plane dropped from storm-tosed clouds and crumpled on a ridge near here. Of the other 16 aboard, several received grave injuries. Others were hurt to a less degree.

Japs Outlose U. S., 5 to 1, On Iwo; Manila Rails Resume

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Vice Adm. Richmond Kelly Turner has said by radio from his flagship that American Marine deaths on Iwo Jima are less than one-fifth of those of the Japanese, an indication that around 4,000 Marines had lost their lives in capturing this island, 750 miles from Tokyo.

Fleet Adm. Nimitz reported in yesterday's communique that careful estimates placed the number of Japanese dead on Iwo island at 20,000.

Turner and Lt. Gen. Holland M. (Howlin' Mad) Smith, Marine commander in the Pacific, reviewed the capture of the island.

Turner said it was "unbelievable" that the Marine deaths were so low.

The American flag was raised over Iwo yesterday.

Further reduction of the last stand area of the Japanese on the northermost end of Iwo yesterday, the 25th day of an invasion, was reported by the Navy today.

The gains toward Kitano point were registered by Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's Fifth Marine Division against intense small arms and mortar fire.

Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's Third Marine Division in the center and Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' Fourth on the right mopped up straggling enemy elements.

The communique reported new air attacks on the Bonin and Marshall Islands and on Wake.

ADVANCES ON LUZON

American rail and ship transportation operated into Manila again today as Gen. MacArthur announced advances on all Luzon fronts and on recently invaded Mindanao, where the Americans now control 28 miles of coastline.

MacArthur himself rode the flag-bedecked locomotive of the first train into Manila yesterday. He said American engineers accomplished the difficult job of reconstructing the Lingayen-Manila railroad in record time.

On Mindanao Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Division captured Manicahan on the east flank and San Ramon on the west of the Zamboanga bridgehead. This gave the Americans control of 28 miles of seacoast.

ELECTRIC-LAID MINES

MacArthur said the Japanese for the first time in the Pacific theater were using electrically-controlled land mines. Resistance was described as increasing.

On Luzon the 158th Regimental Combat team destroyed a concentration of enemy barges and dispersed a Japanese landing attempt at Bolo, on the south coast.

British submarines have sunk 74 enemy vessels and damaged 25 others in Far Eastern waters recently, the admiralty announced.

The vessels destroyed, a communique said, included a small tanker, a minelayer, an armed trawler, an antisubmarine trawler and a naval auxiliary. The rest were junks, landing craft, coastal vessels and motor lighters.

During the operation one submarine fought a running gun battle with a convoy of five coastal vessels and an armed trawler off Sumatra.

CHINESE BRISTLE

Further Japanese preparations for the battle they fear they must fight with Americans on the China coast were reported in Chinese dispatches which said that the entire Japanese-occupied stretch of the Yangtze river from its mouth to Hwaining (Anking) had been closed to commercial navigation.

Hwaining, the Japanese-held capital of Anhwei province, is 364 miles up the river from Shanghai.

The Japanese also were reported to have ordered evacuation of all Japanese nationals living at Hangchow, the famous lakeside resort 100 miles southwest of Shanghai and the first group was said to have departed for Manchuria.

Meanwhile, the Chinese high command announced attacks against enemy positions in Hunan province southwest of Yuhsien, 45 miles east-northeast of Hengyang and one of the strongholds guarding the Canton-Hankow railroad. There were indications that these attacks were in preparation for a full-scale counteroffensive by the Chinese.

2 Georgians Listed Among Freed POWs

Two Georgians, one of them an Atlantan, are on the latest official list of American prisoners of war liberated by the advance of the Russian armies over eastern Europe.

The Atlantan is Capt. Ira Glenn Bottoms, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bottoms, live at 1782 Springer street, N. W. Capt. Bottom's wife and two children live on East Wesley road.

Capt. Bottoms, a member of the 179th Field Artillery, of the Georgia National Guard, went into the service immediately after the United States entered the war. He was trained first at Camp Blanding, Fla., and later in chemical warfare. He went overseas last November was an officer of the field artillery.

In January of this year the War Department reported Capt. Bottoms missing in action as of Dec. 19 last. It developed later that he was in the same prison camp with Wright Bryan, war correspondent. The Soviet army liberated both men on January 23 last.

Capt. Bottoms, 31, was born in Fulton county and educated in Atlanta. He attended Tech High school and later Tech night school. Before going into the army, he was connected with the Neon Sign Company.

The other Georgian named in the list is Sgt. Earl B. Buckels, whose sister, Mrs. Margaret Thomas, lives at 412 Tift avenue, Tifton.

John K. Ottley Jr. Is Returning To Constitution

John K. Ottley Jr., is taking off the uniform of a major in the U. S. Air Forces and returning to his work in an executive capacity on The Constitution, after almost three years in the service.

Maj. Ottley, who joined Uncle Sam's forces in June 1942, was most recently executive officer, or second in command, of Bryan Army Air Field in Texas, the only instrument-flying school of the Army, of which Col. J. B. Duckworth, a fellow-Atlantan, is the commanding officer.

Entering service as a first lieutenant in 1942, Ottley was promoted to captain in January 1943, and promoted to his majority in January of last year. Prior to his post at Bryan Field, he was stationed at Columbus Army Air Field, Columbus, Miss.

Bryan Field, in addition to being center of the Army's instrument-flying instruction, is also an experimental base where new developments in aviation are tested and passed upon, either being rejected or adopted for use by the nation's Army fliers. Here also is located the Army Air Forces standardization board, which determines the usefulness and acceptability of such innovations.

Maj. Ottley is a member of the board of directors of The Constitution Publishing Company. The family will resume its former residence here at 2625 Rivers road.

Guns, Butter . . . and Oleomargarine

The War Food Administration's announcement of sharply curtailed butter supplies for civilian consumption serves to call attention again—and most effectively—to the wholly indefensible tax on oleomargarine.

Civilians will have about two million less pounds of butter in April and May than they received during February and March. That's because the armed services, which required 20 per cent of the butter produced in February and 25 per cent in March, will need 40 and 55 per cent respectively of that produced in April and May.

Now no one begrudges the services a single ounce of the butter they consume. In fact, if it becomes necessary to set aside a full 100 per cent of the nation's butter supply to take care of military demands, there will be little or no civilian complaining.

Americans have been extremely fortunate thus far in the war. Our unprecedented ability to expand production—both industrial and agricultural—has made it possible, in the midst of a two-front conflict, for us to have both guns and butter. No one doubts, however, that if it comes down to a choice, our answer will be guns. We are in this war to win and to win at the earliest possible moment. If it becomes necessary to forego butter altogether, we shall do so uncomplainingly.

We do complain, and most vociferously, however, that the selfishness of the congressional farm bloc from middle western dairy states has resulted in our being penalized when, no butter being available, we turn to margarine as a substitute.

It is utterly absurd that the discriminatory tax on colored margarine should be continued at a time when butter is seldom, if ever, available. Countless thousands of busy housewives must be spending hours daily doing a job which could and should be done by the manufacturer.

The butter shortage is bad enough, even though there is nothing which can be done about it. But something can—and should—be done about the prohibitive tax on the only adequate butter substitute.

First National President R. Clyde Williams

The resignation, occasioned by ill health, of James D. Robinson from the presidency of the First National Bank is a real loss to southern banking.

Only the facts that he will continue in an advisory capacity as assistant chairman of the board of that institution and that R. Clyde Williams, who succeeds him, is an extremely able person tend to ameliorate the regret occasioned by his resignation.

His successor, however, is a man who has consistently done an excellent job in the banking field, and who has worked his way up through ability and diligence to duty, and who is perfectly capable of guiding the destinies of the successful institution which he now heads.

Does the Gestapo Head the List?

If, as Russia has set forth as an essential part of her postwar policy, millions of Germans, as slave laborers, are to be put to work rebuilding the cities of the nations devastated by the German armies, a suggestion has been made that members of the dreaded Gestapo shall be the first to be thus taken and put to work in Russia.

There is a pleasing touch of just retribution in the suggestion. Members of the Nazi Gestapo, from top to lowest ranks, constitute just about the most brutal, cruel and honorless group even in honorless Germany.

The suggestion, however, points up a rather striking and illuminative difference in the attitude of the leading Allied powers toward this slave labor plan. Both Russia and France favor it. They see it as simple, thorough justice, that the people of the nation which did the damage they have suffered should be made to restore their property.

On the other hand, neither the United States nor Britain want such enemy workers in their midst after the war. Both consider that work done by such labor would simply mean the taking away of jobs from their own people. Jobs which will be needed, after the fighting is over and the armies are, largely, disbanded.

Furthermore, it is only in the United States there is any real fear of extensive unemployment after the war. Britain still has to restore her own cities, shattered by the blitz, and foresees plenty of work for her people. America, which has suffered no direct enemy-inflicted damage, is the only nation among the "Big Five" which sees any problem in providing sufficient postwar jobs for all who want work through the coming years.

Turn Page, Brother

Editor Constitution: Each morning after reading the front page, I invariably turn to the editorial sheet for the latest "gripes" about a great writer, Westbrook Pegler. It's really amazing how people turn "thumbs down" on someone who dares to write what he thinks.

Even though all Pegler purports to write about may not be true, and some of his accusations false, it must be remembered that such a fellow as this will always stand in the way of would-be wrongdoers in the various administrations.

Some readers have even gone so far as to suggest that the Pegler column be eliminated from your editorial pages. I think that you are only exercising the right of free press by retaining his column. After all, if a radio station were carrying a program that you didn't like, you certainly wouldn't call them to change their program, would you? You simply turn your dial, and in the case of the Pegler haters, I'll say this: Turn your page, brother!

Wars for Decades

Editor Constitution: In view of the fact that Dr. Gallup reports that only 61 per cent of the 70 per cent of the people in the nation who know about the Yalta conference are in favor of it, I think that it would be only fair if you were to include this unfavorable report on the Yalta "Program for World War III."

It offers no hope that a democratic revolt by the Germans against Nazism would be met with sympathy on the part of the Allies (which in reality are the Big Three). These politicians (not statesmen) repeated the bankrupt slogan of unconditional surrender, which has already lengthened the war. They decided to have "territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned," as with Poland, etc.

To change this program will be difficult and will require sustained protest from liberty-loving people everywhere. To accept it will assure misery and wars for decades to come.

For Hard-Boiled U. S.

Editor Constitution: Even before and especially since World War I America has been recognized as the leader of the western hemisphere.

Canada physically, economically, industrially, socially was and is closer to the United States than to any other country. Since War I this unity has become even more definite and certain.

Early in this war Australia and the entire Pacific recognized that they must look to the United States for protection, and the United States, with MacArthur and our great Navy, has emerged as the savior and the protector of the Pacific from Australia to Alaska, from China to California and Chile.

France and Great Britain realized that they needed, not merely tools and equipment, but American manpower is essential to save them and their civilization.

Russia alone approximates the giant of the west, the United States, in manpower and resources. However, except for America's superiority in production in equipment and in machinery even Russia's resources and manpower might not have been sufficient.

America, as the leader of the world, must be big-hearted. But as the protector of the western civilization and the civilization of the old countries of the world, America must also be hard-boiled, for Russia and Stalin are strong and hard-boiled, and are set upon establishing Communism.

Runyon's Column

Editor Constitution: I have read with the greatest interest, Damon Runyon's recent article: "Soldiers Should Organize Now," and referring particularly to the paragraph in which Mr. Runyon states:

"The election is over and the most rabid Roosevelt rooter cannot say that I bring the matter up to discredit the administration, but the fact is, that in 1932 President Roosevelt put forward his first (and some claim only) economy measure, the national economy act, which took away from the veterans of other wars most of the benefits that had been bestowed upon them."

Congressman Elmer E. Studley, of Flushing, L. I., to whom I was acting as secretary, was ex-commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans, and an ardent supporter of legislation in behalf of the veteran. He was very much disturbed over this "economy measure." He remarked to me at the time: "I am going to fight this bill if I am defeated for congress," and made the greatest speech of his career, in protest against the bill. I recall many brilliant speeches made at that time, among them one by the late Hon. William L. Connery, of Massachusetts, and this reminiscence is merely passed along as a tribute to their loyalty especially to Congressman Studley who fought the issue squarely, in the face of inevitable defeat, for he failed, as he predicted, to be returned to congress.

The Palestine Issue Reopened by Big 3

(Editor's Note: Ralph McGill is en route around the world as a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors' mission in behalf of universal news freedom. His column will appear as time and communications facilities allow. When it is not available, substitute features will be used, as today's by Dorothy Thompson.)

Apparently one result of the conferences that have been held in the Middle East is the reopening of the Palestine problem. The leading Arab anti-Zionist among the Arab princes is ibn Saud, one of the three kings whom the President met at Suez. In a recent statement the President remarked that he had learned in five minutes' talk with ibn Saud more about the Arabian and Jewish problems in Palestine than he could have acquired from the exchange of a dozen letters. Following the President, Mr. Churchill spoke with ibn Saud and the other Arabian leaders, and in his report to the house of commons said that the solution of the Jewish question in Palestine would have to be postponed until after the war.

So it is obvious that both the President and Mr. Churchill discussed the Palestine problem as it affects Arabs and Jews. Mr. Churchill is the heir to the Balfour declaration establishing a national home for the Jews in Palestine, and Mr. Roosevelt is committed—as are the Republicans—by the party platforms, to the establishment of a Jewish commonwealth there.

Now the Arabs have taken the initiative and made a compromise offer. The status of the Jews in Palestine is at present determined by the white paper (British), which would have halted all Jewish immigration after March, 1944, or limited it to 75,000 since 1939. This quota is now all but exhausted. Against this the Zionist Jews have been vigorously campaigning.

Federation Arabs, ever since the last war, have been attempting to create a Pan-Arabian federation to include Syria and Palestine, Saudi Arabia, and Egypt. There are two difficulties to be overcome: the rivalry between the Arab states and princes over leadership; and the problem of Palestine. Arabian objections to a Jewish state or homeland there are the cause of the white paper.

Immediately following the talks of the Arabian leaders with Roosevelt an all-Arabian conference took place in Cairo. It seems that the rivalry has been, to some degree, subordinated to the Pan-Arabian aim, in favor of a loose confederation. To solve the second difficulty, the Arabs have offered to permit an additional 300,000 Jews to enter Palestine, with the object of keeping the Jewish and Moslem-Arabian populations there at "parity." Actually, the Arabs would always have a majority under this plan, for it excludes the 150,000 Arabian Christians.

This plan, while it is a sizable contribution to the problem of settling Jewish refugees, is no solution for the Zionist desire to create a Jewish commonwealth. It will put the Zionists in a dilemma: whether to reject what is, on the surface, a considerable concession, with the probability, if it is rejected, that all concession will be withdrawn; or, for the sake of immediate aid in solving the refugee problem, formally to abandon the millennial Jewish hope.

There have always been two schools of thought in Zionism—that of the western Jews, who supported the Palestine movement as an opportunity of new life for their oppressed co-religionist, and that of the eastern European Jews, who saw in it a Messianic, restorationist idea. It is from these groups that the great Palestinian impulse has come. Their fervor has made the Palestinian settlement unique, and, indeed, one of the most remarkable colonization projects of our epoch.

Changed The war has radically changed the Jewish situation in the world. The European Jews have been decimated. The greatest number of Jews live today in Soviet Russia and the United States, neither of which countries furnished immigration to Palestine. There lately has been a tendency of Zionist Jewry to accept as an accomplished fact that the position of the Jew in Europe will be untenable even after this war. Therefore, they believe, since neither Russia nor the United States are going to be open to immigration, there is no other place for them than Palestine.

If this presumption were true, it would be a terrible comment on our power to eradicate Nazism. The right of every Jewish citizen of a European state, to live on terms of equality with his compatriots, should be established in the peace terms. If this cannot be settled, no Jew will be safe in Palestine or anywhere else.

So, after the debacle of European Jewry, a permissible immigration of 300,000 would be a considerable contribution.

But it is a shame to attempt to settle matters of this kind forever, or confine them forever within such artificial rigidities as "parity of population." Leaving national passions aside, the Jewish colonization of Palestine has been an immense material uplift for the Arabian world. Life, which is ever-creative and changing, cannot be confined by formal rules, especially in these changing times. The offer of 300,000 is immediate relief for the most desperate of all the European peoples. And if a true United Nations world emerges, many things that seem incapable of settlement now should have another and more co-operative aspect only a few years hence.

Soldier Son's Wife Puzzles His Mother

The report to follow herewith comes at second hand. Therefore there is no personal guarantee of accuracy. It is a good story, though, so let's consider it for whatever it may be worth.

The conversation took place in a beauty parlor, that feminine arsenal of news and gossip and scandal. (I can always tell when any of my women have had a hair-do, even without looking at their heads. Just listen to the conversation. If it is unusually rich in anecdote and repeated rumor—they've been to the beauty dispensary.)

This agent of mine was having her hirsute equipment glorified with one of those paradoxical treatment, a transitory permanent. The operator who has worked on my gal's head many a time and knows all there is to know about my family—as well as the families of all her customers—was asking questions about that new English daughter-in-law of mine whom we are still waiting to meet, whenever she arrives from her home in Bristol, England, in good old Atlanta and Decatur, Ga.

In an adjoining chair, there sat a typical Georgia countrywoman. (Modern—she too was getting a permanent.) She listened in on the conversation and, at last, could not refrain from joining it.

Georgian Meets Pole "Huh," she began. "So your brother married an English girl. She's prob'ly mighty nice. I expect you'll git along with her just fine. But you don't know nothin'. My boy married a Polish girl and she's out at my place right now."

She sighed and achieved a—slightly forced—smile.

"I'm tryin' my best to git along with her, to be nice to her and make her feel at home. But I do kinder wish Billy would come on home and look after her hisself. It gits mighty trying at times.

"You see, she speaks only a few words in English and has to use them awful slow. We can make out to understand each other, in a sort of a way and, of course, she's learnin' more words every day and that problem's gettin' met.

"She tells me her folks don't speak English at all. It beats me how her and Billy did their courtin'. But then I suppose it ain't talking alone that tells a couple they've got to git married.

"But it's her eatin' that worries me most. She just don't seem to like my kind of food. She won't touch cornbread, for one thing. And she likes cabbage better than anything else, but won't eat it if I put a little sidemeat in the pot. Wants it boiled plain and then she eats it with a little dab of butter meltin' on it.

"Funny, ain't it? And biscuits. She'd never seen a biscuit 'til she got to my house. That is, a real biscuit. She made something she called a biscuit but it warn't much. Took a little dab of flour and some sugar and stirred it up. I ate it and pretended it was good, but shucks it was poor stuff, just didn't have any flavor at all.

"I've got so I just get the stuff from the grocery and tell her to cook it to suit herself. Oh, we're gettin' along all right and she's a right sweet girl. I know that. And I do try to be kind to her and make her feel at home. But, honest, I do wish Billy could come home. It's kind of a strain, two women in the same house worryin' all the time about the same man, even if one is his mother and tuther one his wife."

Eyes Are Opening I suppose such situations as this of the Georgia mother and the Polish daughter-in-law are to be found, today, all over this country. And, regardless of superficial differences in food tastes, in language and background and customs, it is a good thing. Good for the girls who will not only find something fine in this country and desirable to their new homeland. If they didn't have something within them worth while they would never have had the courage to travel, alone, to a strange land.

And it is a tremendously good thing for the American families, the mothers such as the one quoted above, to learn at first hand that the world is not bounded by the periphery of their own home affairs. To learn that there are girls who are sweet who do not even speak English and that there are customs and habits not necessarily undesirable just because they are not American.

It is, perhaps, a worn-out cliche, that phrase about "hands across the sea." But it is an important and extremely valuable contribution to the better world we seek when hearts across the sea find common understanding because of their love for the same decent American boy.

So We Get Nuthin'

ROBERT QUILLEN

Some Notes On Women

A well-known scientist has written a book in which he tells how other men and women differ and in what particulars one excels the other.

Having spent 10 years in research and study, he should be able to qualify as an expert; but many of his "discoveries" have been known to observant people since they were old enough to tell time, and others contradict common knowledge, observation and experience.

For example, he says the female is a better animal than the male. He doesn't say it in those words, but that is what he means. Her body is a more efficient machine and functions better. The male is heavier and has stronger muscles, but she has more endurance and her nerves can stand more wear and tear.

Most of this was ordained when Nature gave her the job of bearing and nursing children, and gave man the job of going forth to slaughter and lug home the bacon. He needed muscular strength, and she needed nerves that wouldn't crack under strain.

That women last longer is obvious, for the land is full of widows. Statisticians tell us that women own 80 per cent of America's wealth, and they didn't get it by toiling. Men striving to get rich wear out in their prime, and their widows get the property or insurance.

There is probably no truth in the belief that women are more timid than men. We all fear the strange and unknown. People live unafraid on the slopes of a rumbling volcano, yet are terrified by a little storm at sea. If women seem more fearful, it is because they are not acquainted with dangers that have become familiar to men. They show no more fear where bombs fall.

One questionable assertion made by the scientist was that savages show women more consideration than civilized men do.

In many instances the treatment given women is determined by the law of supply and demand. Where women are scarce, they are shown great deference; where they are plentiful and easy to get, they are treated with an easy familiarity bordering on contempt.

All most of us know about savages is that they let the women do the work, and some of them buy wives as work stock. They value women, all right, but not in a chivalrous way.

Surely Americans are civilized, if anybody is, and their women are treated better than any others in the world.

We call the Germans and Japs savages, and they aren't noted for chivalry. Pictures of German refugees show the men walking proudly unburdened while their wives are bent double under loads of household treasures. And Japanese women are treated as a lower class, fit only to work and bear young.

That spoils the argument that savages are good to women.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

LT. GOVERNOR?

(Tifton Gazette.)

It was not so many years ago that the people of Georgia turned down a proposal to create the office of lieutenant governor, and we doubt that their opinion has changed much since then. Creation of the office of lieutenant governor is a part of the new constitution. The office is a relic of the days when a governor, leaving the state for any period of time, had to spend several days traveling. Soon he—or she—will be able to cross the continent between meals. So, the lieutenant governor will not be needed. With communications what they are, the governor can carry on his work while visiting in San Francisco about as well as he can from the executive mansion in Atlanta, when he does not go to his office in the capitol.

Interior Decorators Enter at Own Risk

Do you have a little monstrosity in your home?

Not Junior, stupid. I mean in the furniture line.

If so, and if you've been wondering what to do with it, and if you favor real economy in government operation, then bundle it up and express it forthwith to the Governor's Mansion, Hartford, Connecticut.

Connecticut, which has never had an official domicile for its chief executive, has just acquired one. And the question of furnishing it has now arisen. But Connecticutians are a frugal people. Thus the chairman of the committee to acquire furniture for the new mansion has declared: "We won't buy a piece of furniture until the people of the state are given a chance to contribute household articles."

So, if you've a spare halltree-and-umbrella-rack or horsehair love-seat or maybe even a rawhide pillow with "Greetings From Milwaukee—1914" burned thereon, here is your chance to get rid of it . . . and to a worthy cause, too.

It's a good thing Connecticut almost always has a Republican governor. That way they'll be kind of appropriate . . . those white elephants sitting around.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

War Being Brought Home to Japanese

WASHINGTON.—Most every informed military source admits that Germany is now on her last legs. The next great Allied offensive in Europe will undoubtedly be the last one. This may come in a matter of days, or caution may dictate that it be delayed until the arrival of more ideal weather conditions in spring, now just around the corner.

But, as Prime Minister Churchill has put it, it remains only for the Allies to make one last great heave to end the European war. Even the most pessimistic of our officials agree now that the time cannot be far off.

With that sort of an outlook in Europe, it is interesting to make a fresh appraisal of the prospects for bringing the other end of the world conflict to an early conclusion—the war in the Pacific.

The Japanese homeland is just now getting its first real taste of war. Heretofore the home islands have been largely untouched, except for sporadic bombing attacks here and there, none of them of great proportions.

The various Japanese island outposts that have fallen to us during the past two years have not materially affected their domestic economy. Not until we have cleaned up the Philippines and re-established bases there will the real pinch come in this direction. Then we will sever the lifeline between the home islands and Nipponese colonial possessions, which is certain to put a devastating crimp in their activities.

New Phase But the past week ushered in a new phase of the war in the Pacific. From our newly constructed bases in the Marianna Islands we have for the first time, it might be said, delivered wholesale air attacks against the principal Japanese cities.

First, we hit Tokyo with 300 of our great Superfortresses, which should be roughly equivalent to a 1,000-plane raid of the type we use in Europe. The result was that approximately 17 square miles in the heart of the city were obliterated.

Next we sent an equal number of the great B-29s against Nagoya, chief source of Japanese aircraft production.

And now we have delivered a stunning blow to another large Japanese city, Osaka.

Hence within a week we have torn the heart out of three of the principal cities of Japan and centers of Nipponese war production.

In the weeks that lie immediately ahead it is only logical to assume that there will be almost daily repetitions of giant air raids of this scope. The long arm of our forces is now reaching out to lay the heavy hand of attrition on the Jap war potential.

At the present rate of things, the Japanese homeland by midsummer should be as much of a shambles as Germany is today. One by one, we will reduce their cities to rubble heaps. This softening process will continue unabated until the time is propitious for an invasion of the home islands.

Psychological Reaction In the meantime, there will come the impact of the ending of the war in Europe. That certainly cannot be delayed longer than midsummer, it seems. And when the final collapse of Germany comes, it is bound to have a psychological reaction in Japan of tremendous proportions.

For the Japs will realize then that their day of doom is close at hand.

It is entirely possible that the impact of the forthcoming German collapse will be enough to put an end to further resistance in Japan, particularly if it is preceded by a few months of sustained bombing attacks of the scope now being undertaken by our air forces.

Our military men are not reckoning with the possibility in laying plans for prosecuting the war in the Pacific, but they are by no means dismissing it. The war with Japan could easily come to a sudden end a short time after the Germans have finally been beaten down.

It is for these reasons that many military observers are coming to the conclusion that it is not too much to expect an end of the war in both theaters before the present year expires.

The Japs are an unpredictable people and no one can say for sure what they are likely to do. But the war is now being brought home to them in earnest for the first time. It will be interesting to see how they react to punishment that they heretofore have been meting out to other people.

OLLIE REEVES

"Umatilla, Cayuse and Walla Walla Indian tribes have been ordered by chief to silence tom-toms at midnight at their next tribal dance."—News item.

How proud we are that we have made so many great advances,
We look on simple savages with sneers and haughty glances;
Their lack of modesty aroused the settlers' indignation,
For they were almost nude as Adam was at his creation.
They could not understand why savages smeared up their faces
With gaudy paint, but left exposed some more important places;
They looked with horror-stricken gaze on Cherokees and Choctaws
Who took delight in scalping heads or giving people lockjaws.
"Such things must cease," the settlers said, "no matter how they prize them, We'll teach them that their ways are wrong—in short, we'll civilize them."
They filled them full of mountain-dew and other brands of liquor,
For well they knew that nothing else would change a person quicker.
They cheated them, they swindled them and mowed 'em down like rabbits,
And when they had them in control, took up their savage habits.
We've learned to kill in fancy ways, and, as for paint adorning
Their savage hides, just count the painted squaws you've seen this morning,
Recall the squares of naked flesh exposed to wintry weather
Where skirts and hose and things like those have failed to get together.
Yes, we are proud that we have made so many great advances—
There never was an Indian could equal modern dances—
And so we find the savages in very poor condition—
They lost because they couldn't stand the savage competition.

DAMON RUNYON

Compulsory Military Training

I was an advocate of compulsory military training for many years and people used to roust me around pretty good for it, too, saying I was a dirty militarist, but I have eased off that tack as we approached nearer to complete victory in this war because I was assured that it is the war to end all wars.

In other words, if there are to be no other wars I could not see the sense of military training, so you can imagine my astonishment to learn that President Roosevelt, one of the very persons to tell me this is the war to end all wars, is on the boost for compulsory training.

He says a year of this service will lift the nation's physical standard and pointed to the percentage of disability rejections for the service in this war is "appalling." I think he is wrong on both counts. I will agree to return to the ranks of the training advocates if we can dispense with all humbug about it, starting with the dismissal of the no-more-wars thought.

As for the compulsory training lifting the nation's physical standard, that is humbug, too. I think it will teach our youth the fundamentals of military duty, but taking them at the early age contemplated it will scarcely give them any bigger or stouter muscles but on the contrary, and depending on the nature of the training, may tend to break them down sooner and expose them to permanently disabling maladies besides teaching them all manners of bad habits through associations.

Let us just say that the training is nesessary for our national protection and let it go at that. Our physical standard is obviously better than that of the nations that have no compulsory training because in athletic competition our athletes have always made suckers of their best and in war our quickly trained soldiers have proven far superior to those of Italy, Germany and Japan.

As for the percentage of disability rejections being "appalling," I am sure that President Roosevelt overlooked the fact that a vast number of the so-called disabled men have been quite useful as civilian war workers. So they have not been a total loss even militarily.

Furthermore in a dire pinch, they would have been serviceable as fighting men even though they lacked the perfection demanded of the members of the armed forces. Or was it perfection that was demanded? I know of several cases of one-eyed men who were accepted, of men with false teeth and chronic ailments.

These ailments were certified to by reputable physicians, but the men were taken just the same as draft boards leaned backwards to avoid charges of favoritism, just as some of them leaned far forwards to the proper political pull. There will be many pensioners on our rolls in the years to come who should never have been inducted.

As against the misfits who were put in uniform, we have the spectacle of thousands of other men of military age rejected or deferred for one reason and another, including the physical, who are able to play baseball and football and engage in prize fights without any difficulty. In the service there is the strength of several divisions engaged in noncombat duties, some of it of a nature that seems slightly ridiculous.

The frenzied defense of all sport as a war essential by its direct and indirect beneficiaries was one of the interesting phases of this war and without denying their arguments I must say the number of "disabled" men in its ranks would seem to disprove the theory that sport is a body builder and a health enhancer.

Of course the girls should be included in any compulsory training program. I think one of the great errors of this war was the failure to pass a law drafting our females since they declined to come forward voluntarily in the required numbers. The comparatively few that did volunteer have performed and are still performing the finest kind of service and too much cannot be said for them or done for them in the future.

But their reluctant sisters should never again be given the chance to shirk the call of duty. They should always be drafted the same as the men. The girls should be trained from an early age the same as the boys. Maybe we could develop among the young ladies a few who will rise to prominence in the paths of peace in the future and lead their sex into the national service in time of need—as did not happen in this war.

Dewey the Better Man

A few years ago Henry Wallace declared that the people had made a mistake in a congressional election which went against his party and since then the Political Action Committee has agreed that they were in error on that occasion. In fact, one stated purpose of the PAC was to educate the citizens against repetition of the lapse in which they returned a batch of Republicans.

I am forced to agree with them that the people can be wrong but I am almost sure they will disagree with me when I say the people were wrong last fall in electing Mr. Roosevelt to a fourth term.

Still, I think it would have been wiser to elect Tom Dewey, because I believe that in that case the President of our great republic would not have gone to Yalta but would have made Stalin come at least half way for once, which would have been important to our national prestige and a gain for Christian morality in the world.

You may argue that this is a small point and the discussion of it mere quibbling, but my idea is that the peoples of the world who looked to us for leadership have now turned their eyes and thoughts to Moscow because Stalin always makes Roosevelt and Churchill go to him. That is bad for morality in the world at large because, after all, the world knows that Stalin is just as bad as Hitler and we deceive ourselves if we refuse to give it a thought.

It isn't necessary to be abusive about it, but he killed off more Russians before this war began than our country had lost in all our wars down to this one and he just isn't a nice or reliable fellow, on the record. As a military ally, he has been great, but we can't laugh off or howl down the facts that he is a Communist and that, by his credo, a Communist permits, indeed obligates, himself to double-cross anyone in the interests of Communism.

Once they said Stalin was too busy chasing Germans to go farther than Tehran. Roosevelt and Churchill had a few little concerns of their own at the time but off they went, nevertheless, to meet Stalin. The inconvenience to Roosevelt must have been awful, much as he loves travel and much as he seems to enjoy the ostentation of such bull-sessions in the Old World. Newspaper practice up to now has forbidden reference to the President's infirmity, but he himself took the gag off when he publicly spoke of the torture of hauling 10 pounds of steel around in his public appearances during all these years. So it would have been easier all around if Stalin had come to this country or part of the way, and by now the Americans were chasing just as many Germans just as fast as the Russians.

I think an awful lot of good people in many countries who hate and fear Communism would have taken hope if the people of the United States had elected Dewey. Naturally, he would have co-operated with Stalin in the fighting war and, in the face of an inherited situation, he could not have refused to discuss and plan peace.

But Dewey surely would have given us and the rest of the world a sign by running out of Washington all of those pro-Communists and covert Communists who have been mocking so many good and decent Americans all these years and calling them Fascists during the war, even though they and their sons have been overseas fighting Fascism. Surely he would not have nominated Henry Wallace for Jesse Jones' old jobs nor for any job at all, for that matter, except perhaps some useful toil in a war factory. He would not have invited or permitted anyone to invite in his name the noisy element of Hollywood and Broadway to the inaugural lunch in the White House, a very depressing performance.

I insist that Dewey is a better man than Roosevelt on every count and would have continued the war just as successfully as Roosevelt has, a point of doubt in the hearts of many voters last fall which may have been the deciding factor. He takes government seriously, not flippantly. He governs by law, not by ear and by prejudice. He is against special privilege not only for the other side but from his side and for himself and his family. And his moral courage is such that if he had been elected he would not have been afraid to discard the devious and dubious term "democracy" and substitute "Christianity" or "Christian ideals" from time to time.

Up to now, just because Russia is atheistic, and because "democracy" is an ambiguous thing, we have suppressed our feelings and beliefs and there has been no recognition of any divine power. Another reason is that any such innovation would set the Communists to howling that "Christian" meants anti-Semitic.

Finally, I believe Dewey would have established Washington, D. C., and not Moscow, U. S. S. R., as the moral and political capital of the world.

Need for Tires Seen in France

PARIS.—Before leaving the United States I saw at New Bedford, Mass., the dilemma of War Manpower Commissioner McNutt, who had tried in vain for two months to persuade some 300 skilled textile workers to transfer from nine fine goods mills to two tire cord plants there.

The object was to speed up production to help meet the critical shortage of tires for military use. Mr. McNutt has not solved the problem.

The first morning I was in Paris I saw two soldiers stop a truck and examine its tires. My American officer companion explained that they were inspecting the tires as part of a conservation campaign.

The scope of this campaign, which began last November—and it has been tremendous—tells more graphically than words the need for tires to roll up supplies for beating the Germans back to Berlin.

War has a greedy appetite for tires, for war moves on wheels, and as Gen. Eisenhower said when opening the conservation campaign, "This is a war of supply quite as much as it is a war of tactics."

Everybody, including the humblest GI, has pitched into this campaign with a will. He has a job of fighting to do and it is getting down to the short jabs on the German front, but he is taking time to watch his tires and do the little things to keep them in as good shape as possible.

The campaign started with a message from Gen. Eisenhower, who said, "I am not exaggerating when I say this war will be needlessly extended unless we extract every possible mile from our tires and use them only as we find necessary."

Orders went out to every sector. Every means of information was used. The need for conservation cried out from the Stars and Stripes and Yank, the service newspapers, over radios, from moving picture screens, in huge posters which line the roads, and in stickers on every vehicle.

In the south of France, around Marseilles, posters were even put up in public toilets, and they are to be seen high up on mountain trails on the southern front, showing the sense of humor of American soldiers.

The Stars and Stripes was flooded with suggestions from soldiers. Two GIs—George Huff, of Broken Bow, Neb., and Lawrence Day, of Wichita, Kan.—took an electromagnet from a generator they found and made a road sweeper by attaching it to a weapons carrier. It picked up bits of shrapnel and other metals debris. They reported picking up more than 100 pounds. In another case a battery reported it had reduced flats 50 per cent since enforcing a careful tire inspection system.

A prize contest for a slogan brought bundles of entries. The winner was Sgt. Robert J. Porter, of the 19th Corps headquarters, with "Nearing victory, end the fight, conserve tires, day and night." This now shouts from posters everywhere. Some of these boys undoubtedly got headed for the advertising business after the war through this campaign.

The reason for saving tires has been proclaimed broadside, but they are obvious to any soldier of the line who raced across France with Gen. Patton after the breakthrough, to any soldier of supply who rushed trucks with supplies, day and night, to keep up with Patton, to any soldiers who fought through to the German border and across. Supplies must be moved in a steady stream to keep the front slugging forward, to keep the fighters fed, clothed and armed.

The reasons are even obvious to a newcomer, such as myself, who has watched trucks roll along the roads below in an endless procession while flying over the country from the Normandy peninsula to Reims.

INSIGHT OF FAITH

We walk by faith, and not by sight—2 Corinthians 5:7.

The eminent physicist, Sir Arthur Eddington, who passed on a few days ago, was one of that mystic type of mind that sees more than the material in substance and stands in awe before spiritual realities. Tearing a bit of the universe apart and mathematically analyzing it as atoms, protons, neutrons, and electrons, one is easily led to wonder if what our senses tell us exists is as it seems. To say to this scientist that the taste of the apple resides in the apple would be like saying that the pain in a tooth being treated by a dentist is in the drill. Here is thrust upon us the quest for reality. Both science and religion have their contributions to make; and each comes to see that progress is by faith and not by sight.

Eternal God, who dost clothe Thyself variously and wondrously, we thank Thee for every manifestation of Thy power and Thy love. Forbid that with minds capable of knowing Thee, hearts designed to serve Thee, we should fail to find Thee. In the spirit of Christ we pray.

Carrier Crew a Proud Lot . . . and With Good Reason

IN THE WESTERN PACIFIC—(Delayed)—An aircraft carrier is a noble thing. It lacks almost everything that seems to denote nobility, yet deep nobility is there.

A carrier has no poise. It has no grace. It is top-heavy and lop-sided. It has the lines of a well-fed cow.

It doesn't cut through water like a cruiser, knifing romantically along. It doesn't dance and cavort like a destroyer. It just plows. You feel it should be carrying a hod, rather than wearing a red sash.

Yet a carrier is a ferocious thing, and out of its heritage of action has grown its nobility. I believe that today every navy in the world has as its No. 1 priority the destruction of enemy carriers. That's a precarious honor, but it's a proud one.

My carrier is a proud one. She's small, and you never heard of her unless you have a son or husband on her, but still she's proud, and deservedly so.

She has been at sea, without returning home, longer than any other carrier in the Pacific, with one exception. She left home in November, 1943.

She is a little thing, yet her planes have shot 228 of the enemy out of the sky in air battles, and her guns have knocked down five Jap planes in defending herself.

She is too proud to keep track of little ships she destroys, but she has sent to the bottom 29 big Japanese ships. Her bombs and aerial torpedoes have smashed into everything from the greatest Jap battleships to the tiniest coastal schooners.

She has weathered five typhoons. Her men have not set foot on any soil bigger than a farm-sized uninhabited atoll for a solid year. They have not seen a woman, white or otherwise, for nearly 10 months. In a year and a quarter out of America, she has steamed a total of 149,000 miles!

Four different air squadrons have used her as their flying field, flown their allotted missions, and returned to America. But the ship's crew stays on—and on, and on.

She is known in the fleet as "The Iron Woman," because she has fought in every battle in the Pacific in the years 1944 and 1945. Her battle record sounds like a train-caller on the Lackawanna railroad. Listen—Kwajalein, Eniwetok, Truk, Palau, Hollandia, Saipan, Chichi Jima, Mindanao, Luzon, Formosa, Mansei Shoto, Hongkong, Iwo Jima, Tokyo . . . and many others.

She has known disaster. Her fliers who have perished could not be counted on both hands. Yet the ratio is about as it always is—about one American lost for every 10 of the exalted race sent to the exalted heaven.

She has been hit twice by Jap bombs. She has had mass burials at sea . . . with her dry-eyed crew sewing 40-millimeter shells to the corpses of their friends, as weights to take them to the bottom of the sea.

Yet she has never even returned to Pearl Harbor to patch her wounds. She slaps on some patches on the run, and is ready for the next battle. The crew in semijocularity cuss her chief engineer for keeping her in such good shape they have no excuse to go back to Honolulu or America for overhaul.

My carrier, even though classed as "light," is still a very large ship. More than 1,000 men dwell upon her. She is more than 700 feet long.

She has all the facilities of a small city. And all the gossip and small talk, too. Latest news and rumors have reached the farthest granny of the ship a few minutes after the captain himself knows about them. All she lacks is a hitching rack and a town pump with a handle.

She has five barbers, a laundry, a general store.

She has a preacher, she has three doctors and two dentists, she has two libraries, and movies every night, except when they're in battle. And still she is a tiny thing, as big carriers go. She is a "baby flat top." She is little. And she is proud.

She has been out so long that her men put their ship above their captain. They have seen captains come and go, but they and the ship stay on forever.

They aren't romantic about their long stay out here. They hate it, and their gripes are long and loud. They yearn pathetically to go home. But down beneath, they are proud—proud of their ship and proud of themselves. And you would be, too.

GALLUP POLL

Another War Within 25 Years?

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J.—When the statesmen of the United Nations meet in San Francisco next month to lay the groundwork for a permanent peace, one of the hidden psychological obstacles they will face is a fatalistic belief among many human beings that wars are inevitable.

One of the prerequisites of a lasting peace, in the opinion of some observers, is that enough people in the world think the time has come, or will soon come, when war is successfully outlawed as a means of settling disputes among nations. The fact is, however, that a substantial number of people in both the United States and Britain think that there is a distinct possibility of another war within the next 25 years. These people do not want more war, but are apparently skeptical of the ability of human leaders to manage the affairs of nations without recourse to war.

In Britain there is even more skepticism about a lasting peace than here in the United States. Will the San Francisco meeting help remove some of this skepticism?

The frame of mind of the people in the two nations is shown in surveys conducted by the American Institute here, and by the British Institute of Public Opinion throughout England.

In the United States it was found that nearly two-fifths of the voters in the civilian population think America will be involved in another war in 25 years. In England nearly one-half of the population thinks another war likely in the same period of time.

The American poll, conducted among the civilian population only, was as follows:

"Do you think the United States will find itself in another war within say the next 25 years?"
Yes	38%
No	45
No Opinion	17

In Britain, 48 per cent of British voters said they thought another war is likely during the next 25 years, while 28 per cent believe this will be the last war, and 24 per cent expressed no opinion.

The most interesting sidelight of the American poll is that youthful voters—often considered as idealists—are more pessimistic about the possibility of a lasting peace than the elderly voters are.

Among civilians aged 21-29, for example, 44 per cent think America will be involved in another war within 25 years, whereas among persons 50 years old or more only 34 per cent take as dark a view as that.

The figures by age groups follow:

	Think War Likely in 25 Yrs.	Think Not	No Opin.
Age 21-29	44%	40%	16%
30-49	39	45	16
50 and over	34	48	18

When Americans were polled on the question whether there might be another war within the next 50 years, the proportion saying yes amounted to 60 per cent.

Some indication of what lies behind the Anglo-Saxon fear that peace may be short-lived comes from a public opinion survey just completed in Canada. This shows that the thing people fear most, and believe may be the main cause of another war, is territorial disputes—how to partition Europe, set up boundary lines, and dispose of colonies.

I got a tremendous kick out of the President's report to congress on the Yalta conference. Just imagine, he traveled 14,000 miles—and then he apologized for sitting down to tell about it. A man who has traveled that far deserves to sit down. Why on plane trips I not only sit down to tell about it afterwards, I even sit down before going aboard. But the pilots always carry me on anyway. I would have enjoyed being at the Yalta conference though. It must have been funny with Churchill phoning down to see what happened to the cigars and FDR trying to roll his own while Stalin just sat there and smiled and puffed on his pipe.

SENATOR SOAPER

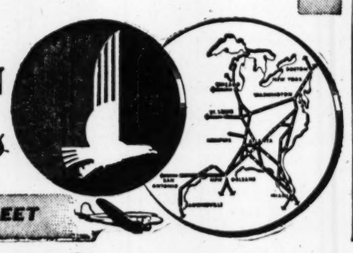

The war, somehow, has taken on a much faster tempo since Yalta. That would be history, catching up with the Big Three.

The last Jap on Iwo has an interesting choice of dilemmas. He can choose between the devil and the deep sea, or jump from the frying pan into the volcano.

As it turned out, the opposition at Cologne was light and perfunctory. It was more as if a Legion convention were taking over an American town.

Boom Fooled Lamb If it had been suggested a year and a half ago that wrestling in Atlanta would come booming back to the extent that Impressario Paul Jones has to carry a chair around with him if he wants a seat, even the old-timers would have scoffed.

Chairman Lamb, of the city boxing and wrestling commission, was disgusted with the trickle of fans attending the weekly events. He didn't see much future. The commission wasn't getting any revenue and it was almost a waste to put on the lights.

"Paul Jones was positive that Atlanta, once a great supporter of wrestling, would come back," Chairman Lamb said the other day. "I was rather skeptical, but look at the crowds now." (Every Friday night the seats are at a premium. There are many occasions when there is standing room only.)

Such an occasion is likely to be tonight when the amazons of the canvas will be the center of attraction.

Women's attendance increases when the gals are on the programs.

Curiosity is one of the reasons. Another reason is to impress their husbands or boy friends.

Any husband who watches girls like Nell Stewart, Ann Miller, Rose Evans and Violet Valentine apply drop kicks, head locks, body slams and other violent holds is bound to be more respectful of the so-called "weaker sex."

The girls' matches attract capacity crowds because they are unfailingly colorful.

Blockbuster Talun and Cowboy Luttrell and Al Massey and Benny Bennicasa are the male performers. They'll have to look to their laurels. Or else the gals will steal the show.

Long, in Short, Wants Suits A cheerful note—and a request—has arrived from a former Cracker and Atlanta semi-pro pitcher, Cpl. Claude Chester Long.

Cpl. Long, stationed near Paris, is special service athletic director for the 62d General Hospital. He pitched for Lawson General before he shipped out.

"I'll have a good baseball club this year, even as good as I had in England. We only had one loss out of the 15 games we played. We have a nice place near Paris and a good setup for athletics. We have already started spring training. Have everything but baseball uniforms.

"I'm sure that many of the boys in Atlanta have a uniform and would send it to me. I would appreciate it very much. Please give my best regards to Earl Mann and the boys out at Lawson."

Word concerning the activities of Larry Miller has been relayed from the Mariannas. Larry is a Navy specialist, first class, in charge of an aviation control tower.

If half of the boys now on the service list return to the Crackers, Earl Mann will have one of the doggondest teams Atlanta has ever seen. If the majority of them return, the Crackers will have to enlarge their farm system.

Manpower will still be a problem after the war. But it is naturally much more desirable to have too many than too few players.

Walsh Joins Pros Another well-known college coach has gone into the pro ranks. He is Adam Walsh, line coach at Notre Dame. Walsh will coach the Cleveland Rams of the National League. He formerly was a head coach of Bowdon College.

It shouldn't be too surprising to see the pros obtaining the services of so many college coaches. After all, where would the coaches come from, if they weren't recruited from the college ranks?

It was virtually a toss-up as to whether Walsh or Hugh Devore would succeed Ed McKeever as temporary head coach at Notre Dame. When Devore was named, a greater future in pro football was opened to Walsh. If a coach doesn't like the pro racket, he can always go back to the college game. Walsh's pro contract stipulates he may resign at the end of the first or second year of the five-year agreement.

Major Leagues' Exhibition Schedule Sharply Curbed

Leaders Agree To Cut Travel Of All Teams

Inter-City Training Games Are Cancelled Under New Edict

By ERNEST BARCELLA.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(UP)—The ax fell hard today on spring training game schedules of the major league teams.

In the most drastic action of its kind in 25 years, major league leaders agreed to a wholesale revision of exhibition schedules to achieve further travel savings.

A new agreement between Transportation Director J. Monroe Johnson and the presidents of the American and National Leagues—Will Harridge and Ford Frick—provides that spring exhibitions will be permitted only if:

1—Games are between clubs training in the same city or suburban areas of the same city.

2—Games are with service teams or at military camps, provided the military supplies the transportation.

3—Games are scheduled with clubs on a direct route from the spring training camp to a team's home city. There must be no side trips en route home after a team breaks camp.

ELIMINATES MOST TRAVEL

This will have the net effect of eliminating virtually all travel by the big league clubs while they are at their training camps. And it will force cancellation of many exhibition games.

The drastic travel curb came a month after Frick and Harridge voluntarily cancelled the 1945 All-Star game at Boston and proposed other transportation economies to cut this season's big league travel by 25 per cent. There was no mention of voluntary action in today's announcement. In fact, there was a suggestion that the leagues had no other choice.

Frick and Harridge said they would notify clubs in their leagues immediately and request them to revise their training game schedules. They said in a joint statement that "in order to co-operate fully with the ODT," they will recommend "cancellation of all spring training games involving any public transportation" not in accord with the three conditions set forth.

Both conceded that the arrangement upsets present spring training game schedules "considerably" and that many exhibitions will have to be cancelled.

PLAY EN ROUTE HOME

But they took some comfort from the fact that teams will be allowed to play as many games as they want en route home from training. They said this probably means the teams will break camp sooner and arrange for more en route exhibitions.

"The clubs may play intra-camp games and games en route to their home parks or intra-city games preceding the opening of their regular season," they said, "provided the cities where the games are played are on a direct route home and no additional transportation is involved."

They had no accurate estimate of the travel saving involved.

All but four clubs—the Boston Braves, Washington Senators, Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees—will be hard hit by the ban on inter-camp games involving travel. The Braves are training at Georgetown University here and the Senators at suburban College Park, Md. They may play each other as will the Yankees who are training at Atlantic City, N. J., and the Red Sox who are training at suburban Pleasantville, N. J.

Under the arrangement, however, neither the Braves nor the Senators—for example—could go to Frederick, Md., training camp of the Philadelphia Athletics. Nor could the Red Sox or Yanks go to Lakewood, N. J., where the Giants are training.

"Herd up" that used stove, heater, fur coat, radio, gun, etc., and "corral" cash by advertising them in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Might have known there was a catch to it when the sarge asked if I wanted to be a shining example of a soldier!"

SPORTS

Durocher at Second In Dodger Workout

By JACK HAND.

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., March 15.—(AP)—Leo Durocher hopes it won't be necessary to play in the Brooklyn infield this year but the 38-year-old manager took over second base in today's skeleton infield drill.

With his waistline slimmed from 36¼ inches to 33½ and his weight trimmed to 175, Lippy Leo was in his best physical condition in years.

Durocher's name had been included among the list of signed player contracts handed out from Brooklyn headquarters although he was not on the roster. It is no secret that Deacon Branch Rickey would look upon a little infielding by Leo with fatherly interest.

It would be wise not to leap at conclusions regarding Durocher because much of the enthusiasm may wear off by summer. Leo's presence at second was easily explainable. There was nobody else around. However, the same situation could continue if players show too much reluctance about reporting.

Second base probably belongs to Ed Stanky, who was given permission to train with the Mobile, Ala., club while recovering from pneumonia.

First Baseman Ed Stevens, Montreal property; Shortstop Tommy Brown, Third Baseman Mike Sabena and Durocher made up the first infield as the club enjoyed a two-hour initial outdoor workout under the best weather conditions in its three-year stay at Bear Mountain.

Goody Rosen was the only Dodger outfield veteran on hand, but Morris Aderholt and Elmer (Red) Durrett, two Montreal graduates, arrived in late afternoon. Luis Olmo was reported en route from his Puerto Rican home.

Twenty-one players are in camp. Only unsigned players who appeared serious in their salary demands were Dixie Walker, the 1944 batting champ; Augie Galan and Les Webber, relief hurler.

YANKEES PROGRESSING

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 15.—(AP)—For the fourth straight day the New York Yankees were outdoors for baseball practice today, setting a two-year record for the resort.

A slight fog did not hamper the 17 players Mgr. Joe McCarthy had exercising.

"We already have had twice as much batting practice as we had last spring in two weeks," said McCarthy.

2 Girls' Matches On Mat Program Tonight At 8:30

Promoter Paul Jones' weekly wrestling show, scheduled for tonight at the city auditorium, will feature five matches involving some of the best mat talent in the game.

The program will lead off with a 20-minute-limit bout, featuring Babe Zaharias and Jack Dillon. Nell Stewart, of Columbus, Ohio, and pretty Violet Valentine, a newcomer from Texas, will grapple in the first of the two feminine matches. These two girls rate high on the list of challengers for the crown now held by Mildred Burke, of Hollywood, Cal., and it is possible that the winner may end up in a title match with Miss Burke right here in the auditorium in a few weeks.

Ann Miller, of Kansas City, and Rose Evans, of Oklahoma, clash in the second all-women's skirmish.

Following these two matches, the male heavyweights will take over the card. Blockbuster Talun, current sensation of the grappling world, is booked against wild and woolly Cowboy Luttrell and from past performances, should give the Texan a real going over. Talun is out after another shot at the heavyweight title and probably will be striving to make an extra good showing in this match.

The main go will be handled by Ben Bennicasa and Al Massey, two of the best matmen in these parts.

Approximately 35 patients from Lawson General hospital have been invited to attend the matches. They will be brought to the bouts by the Red Cross Motor Corps.

The program opens promptly at 8:30 p. m.

Bell Golfers OpenSaturday

Qualifying rounds for the Bell Bomber Plant's one-day spring golf tournament, sponsored by the plant's recreation department, will get under way Saturday at the North Fulton course and continue through Sunday. Match play begins Sunday, March 25, at 9 a. m. The entry list is expected to climb past the 100 mark.

A handsome trophy will be awarded the winner of the championship flight, and merchandise prizes will be given title flight runner-up and winners and runners-up in all other flights. This tourney will be the first of a series which the recreation department will sponsor throughout the summer.

Contestants will include Joe Wofford, of Atlanta, Bell's 1944 champ, and Charles M. Sciple-Sr., former Atlanta city titleholder.

E-Z Mills, C. Park Win Tilts

By RUSSELL MUSGRAVE.

E-Z Mills staged a thrilling third-quarter rally to overcome Marietta's girls and stay in the running fo rthe Class B girls' title of the annual College Park tournament. The final score was 18 to 17.

College Park boys eliminated Ordnance Base from the tourney with an easy 45-to-34 triumph and won the right to meet Lawson General hospital tonight. If Lawson wins, it will take the boys' title but if College Park should emerge the victor it will be necessary to play another game, since the tournament is double elimination.

Evelyn Rutland sank a foul shot to break a 17-17 tie and win for E Z Mills last night.

Tonight at 7 o'clock Bell Bomberettes meet Lorelei Ladies. If Lorelei wins it will necessitate a second game between them at 10. At 8 o'clock E Z Mills plays Marietta and at 9 College Park boys meet Lawson General.

GMA Gridders Play Purples At 8 P. M. Sat.

Coach Lawrence Whalen's G. M. A. Cadets will wind up spring football drills Saturday night when they engage Boys' High in a regulation game at 8 o'clock on the G. M. A. field. Admission to all comers will be 25 cents.

The game will mark the first tryout of the national federation of high school rules, which will be in effect in all GIAA games next fall. Heretofore all Georgia elevens have played intercollegiate rules. The high school rules will permit forward passes from any point back of the scrimmage line, numerous passes on one down, the grounding of punts inside the 10-yard line, etc.

Only Bill Dailey, center, and Allen Johnson, end, of last year's GMA varsity, will be in the Cadet lineup which will include only players presumably returning next year. Several players are out for track and won't participate.

Shorty Doyal's Purple Hurricane also has been practicing several weeks, and will not only play GMA Saturday, but Marist the following Saturday.

Brother Coaches In Semifinals

MACON, Ga., March 15.—(AP)—The coaching Geer brothers—Bill of Damascus and Walter of Colquitt—gained berths for their girl basketball teams in the semifinals of the state tournament here tonight with victories over teams from Tignall and Brooklet.

CONNIE STILL HOPEFUL

A's Are First Division Club, Claims Mack

By JOHN F. CHANDLER.

FREDERICK, Md., March 15.—(AP)—"We are a first division ball club with a chance for the pennant and we are not nervous about the New York Yankees any more," said Connie Mack as he arrived to take over the Philadelphia Athletics' spring training today.

That, in so many words, sums up the ideas of the 82-year-old dean of baseball as he starts his 45th year as manager of the As.

"If the champion St. Louis Browns manage to retain the 1944 lineup—and apparently they have them all back—they are in the driver's seat. Any club winning the pennant will have to beat them out."

Other than that, said Mack, "it should be a wide open race, and we will be in the best shape since my championship team of 1931, because for the first time since then I hope to have a strong starting infield intact."

The Athletics' pitching staff is all set with five regulars and several promising rookies on hand—providing Russ Christopher, a holdout now in the flod, lives up to 1944 form along with Don Black, Bobo Newsom, Jesse Flores and Jittery Joe Barry, the ace relief pitcher.

Mack's biggest question is Dick Siebert, his veteran first baseman and the guy who can drive the runs across. Mack said he hadn't heard from Siebert and said he understood the first baseman was to be called up by his local draft board for a physical examination.

His other infield regulars are George Hill, third base; Edgar Busch, shortstop, and Irv Hall, second base.

The A's manager had no worries in the catching department, with Frankie Hayes, in the lineup every game last year, ready for another big season, plus Jim Pruett, who hit .312 for Milwaukee's 1944 American Association champions, and Lou Parissee, a hard-hitting receiver from Lancaster, Pa., of the Interstate loop.

Mack's California-tanned brow wrinkled at the question of his outfield.

Only Center Fielder Bobbie Estalella, hitting around .300, is left from the regular outer garden of last year. In the right pasture, Mack is counting on Hal Peck, a fencebuster up from Milwaukee. For the other spot it is a wide-open race between Larry Rosenthal and Charlie Metro, 1944 holdovers, and gangling Ed Levy, a clouter from Milwaukee who has not yet come to terms.

There you have the Athletics, angling for the American League gonfalon which hasn't flown from the Philadelphia flagpole in 14 years. At the mention of 1931, Mack's eyes became dreamy as he reminisced and said:

"What we could do with another Lefty Grove!"

Golf Exhibition Slated at Marietta

Ruth To Referee

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, the home run king, is turning wrestling referee. Ruth, his wife said today, will inaugurate his mat career on April 4 at Boston and if the venture proves successful the former slugger may make a national tour.

BOYS CLUB

The ABC Pilots and the Falcons of Ormewood became the champions of their respective divisions Wednesday night at the Atlanta Boys' Club.

The Pilots, in the 17-and-Under tourney, defeated their rivals, the Eagles, 46-35, in one of the most exciting games of the season. The fray was nip and tuck until the last few minutes when the Pilots pulled away from their opponents with six straight baskets. Tommy Rosser led the winners with 17 points, and Gerald Sawyer got eight for the losers.

In the 14-and-under division, the Falcons overwhelmed their opponents, the Rinkydinks, 25-7, with Floyd, the Falcon center, topping all scores with nine points. Cook got four of the loser's seven.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Bowen Case Tough Issue Facing Council

Desire of City Building Inspector Charles J. Bowen to complete 38 years' continuous service in that division of the government may pose a problem at council's session Monday.

Bowen says he will complete 38 years' service, 28 of which he has been head of the department, on July 1, and has announced he will seek election as an indorsement of his long service.

On the other hand, a group of councilmen contend that Bowen should retire and leave the field to a younger man, and at council's last meeting, March 5, the matter of election of a building inspector was ignored, although a charter stipulation set the election date for the building inspector for the first Monday in March, 1945.

PARLEY WITH MAYOR

Council's decision to pass the election came after a conference of council members in Mayor Hartsfield's office, at which a proposition to elect a new inspector and to give Bowen a two-month leave of absence with pay was discussed.

The postponement of the election was for the purpose of working out details of the plan, but yesterday it appeared no nearer a solution.

Bowen still insisted on re-election. He said he had been elected by the voters of Atlanta for nine consecutive times, that he is anxious to complete 38 years in office and that he believes he is entitled to that consideration.

Although Bowen said he would retire on the pension to which he will be entitled on July 1, he has not yet filed an application for a pension, and his friends have said they believe he will not do so until his election problems are solved.

Bowen's term expires April 30, under existing charter provisions, but Bowen claims the legislative act which cut his term is unconstitutional and that he is entitled to hold office until July 1.

Recent housing controversies in Atlanta and Bowen's alleged liberal interpretation of the rights of builders and developers caused council to pass an ordinance barring issuance of building permits until plans and specifications for the proposed new construction had been approved by Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission.

Atlanta has had three building inspectors since the office was established in 1895. Frank Pittman held the post from 1895 until 1907, when the late Ed R. Hayes was elected, with Bowen as his chief deputy. Hayes relinquished the position in 1916 and Bowen ran, defeating three opponents. He has not had opposition since.

Torras To Continue Passing on Housing

Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission, will continue to pass on the desirability of new home construction in Atlanta, planning commission members have decided.

The action was taken yesterday at a public hearing at which contractors, financing agencies and representatives of various civic clubs aired their diverse views, and during which the authority of Torras to censor new housing development was questioned.

Joseph S. Shaw, former member of the planning commission, and an executive of a building and loan firm, raised the issue when he asked under what authority Torras was vested with the power to withhold house numbers, a condition which must be met before the city building inspector can issue permits.

Mayor Hartsfield cited a recently approved city ordinance requiring approval of plans and specifications by Torras before house numbers can be issued.

During the discussions George West, building and loan executive and building material dealer, disclosed that the new arrangement has arisen because of a fight against City Building Inspector Charles J. Bowen, and that contractors and developers "have been caught between" the contending sides.

The hearing developed because of alleged delays by Torras in approving and clearing several applications for war housing and for so-called GI houses, that is, homes for discharged servicemen.

During the discussions, Hartsfield said he had information that employes of federal housing agencies in Atlanta had been disciplined after it was disclosed they were drawing plans for contractors in violation of federal policies.

Civilian Shoe Leather Slashed

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP) A deep slash in the supply of leather for civilian shoes in April, May and June was disclosed by the War Production Board today.

From meager figures made public, it appeared that only 10 to 15 per cent as much cattle hide would be available for civilian shoe uppers as at present, most of the rest going to meet enormously increased Army demands.

Senate Group Sets V-E Day 'By July 1'

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS)—Consensus of the Senate Military Affairs Committee tonight was that the war in Europe will end by July 1.

In an exclusive poll conducted by International News Service one member placed the date of V-E Day on the continent at April 20.

Two members saw no early end of the Battle of Germany. Several shied away from making definite predictions.

Here is what members of the committee that has access to inside strategy said:

Chairman Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, Utah: "There will be war going on somewhere in the world and perhaps in Europe up to and perhaps beyond 1947. The collapse of organized German resistance does not necessarily mean the end of the war in Europe."

Sen. Harold H. Burton, Republican, Ohio: "The war against the Germans ought to end after we take the Ruhr. That should be late spring or early summer."

Sen. Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, New York: "The war against Germany will be finished by summer's end."

Sen. Lister Hill, Democrat, Alabama: "The German war will end this summer if not sooner.

Sen. A. B. Candler, Democrat, Kentucky: "I have taken a vow never to predict the date. But I hope predictions of an end by at least early summer are true."

One senator, who asked that he remain unidentified said: "The war in Europe may not end until the last German armies, including those on the Italian front, are crushed. The Germans, reinforced by their armies in Italy, might put up a desperate resistance in the rugged Alps.

Lt. Kraft, Freed, Due in Macon

Lt. Roger L. Kraft, until recently an American internee in Switzerland, was due to arrive in Macon late last night to see his wife, Mrs. Martha L. Kraft, a nurse in the Mercy hospital.

Lt. Kraft, a native of Altoona, Pa., was married a year ago to Miss Martha Phinazee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Phinazee, of Forsyth, Ga.

Pilot of a B-24 (Liberator) bomber which landed in Switzerland, Lt. Kraft was one of a number of Americans interned in Switzerland for more than six months. He recently was released through negotiation by the State Department.

Masters To Head Group Probing Beer Parlors

Police Chief Hornsby will assign police to assist J. J. Masters, investigator for the police committee, in completing a check of the proximity of beer and wine vending establishments to churches and schools.

The decision was reached at a committee session last night at which Hornsby told committeemen he had ordered Masters to suspend his investigations, so that he could perform neglected routine for the committee and the department.

The renewed order to complete the study of the 450 beer and wine selling places came as the committee prepared for a special hearing at 7:30 p. m. next Monday on a petition of some DeKalb county citizens that all beer and wine places located in that portion of Atlanta which lies in DeKalb county be refused operating permits after they expire June 30.

Hornsby was ordered to take whatever action he deems necessary in reprimanding Patrolman M. J. Price for an altercation with a brother officer in Piedmont park.

Councilman A. Allen Couch, who has voted consistently against issuing permits to private detectives in Atlanta, took the committee to task for recommending favorably a permit for Frank Monroe Ogle, who with two others, was arrested this week on charges of suspicion of burglary. The matter was brought to the committee when Masters recommended that the permit be revoked, an action which the committee approved by unanimous vote.

Big Nations' Veto Upheld By Churchill

LONDON, March 15.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill frankly told the house of commons today that a line between the strong and the weak was drawn at Yalta, with the big powers alone wielding the right in the world security league to veto measures directed against them as aggressors.

His defense of the veto powers—denied to small nations bent on aggression—came as the Polish government in London issued a violent protest against its exclusion from the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

"We may deplore if we choose that there is a difference between the great and the small, between the strong and the weak in the world," Churchill said. "There undoubtedly is such a difference and it would be foolish to upset good arrangements proceeding on a broad front for the sake of trying to attain immediately to what is a hopeless ideal."

The Poles accused Russia of exercising a right of veto even before the United Nations approved proposals concerning the international organization.

In a note to the United States, British and Chinese governments protesting its ommission from the conference, the exiled Polish regime contended it was "the sole legal and independent representative of the Polish state."

The note said the Polish government in London had submitted certain preliminary suggestions on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals and "intended participating to the fullest" in the establishment of the world security organization.

PACIFIC

and Tokyo broadcast the report that the British Pacific fleet apparently was bombarding Zamboanga peninsula in southwestern Mindanao. This report, likewise, was not confirmed.

A Tokyo broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission reported that three battleships, three cruisers and six destroyers were bombarding Japanese positions.

Tokyo added that 10 transports were in the vicinity.

Japan's concern over the damage done by Superfortress raids became more evident daily. Announcing plans to evacuate unneeded civilians from the big cities, Tokyo radio said that only persons important to the war effort would remain.

Though it was said that evacuation would be on a voluntary basis, it added: "If the appeal for evacuation is not met the government will take appropriate measures."

Ex-Serviceman Given 5 Years in Car Thefts

J. T. Elliott, ex-serviceman who was released from a government mental hospital recently after he was pronounced sane, has pleaded guilty to four counts of larceny of automobiles and was sentenced by Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of the Fulton superior court, to five years in prison.

Elliott, who was indicted a week ago on charges of robbing the Center theater and attempting to rob the Rialto theater, told court attendants he would "rather be in the chain gang than in the asylum."

Firemaster Board Impasse Assailed

Deploring delay in election of a second assistant chief of the Atlanta fire department because of the inability of the eight-man board of firemasters to obtain a majority vote, the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce has passed resolutions urging the board to accept Fire Chief Styron's recommendations.

The resolutions recite that Styron "should know better than any others which member of his staff is best suited to serve as assistant chief," and takes the position that all "appointments of the personnel from within the ranks of the fire department be made in line with the official recommendations of the chief of the fire department."

After 10 hours of deliberation, the firemaster boardmen are still deadlocked by a four to four vote on the election and are adjourned until March 26.

Skeleton Crews Maintain Strike-Bound Studios

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—(AP) The film industry strike settled down to a stalemate today. Opposing union groups refused to budge an inch, and film producers repeated that they were hopelessly entangled in the middle.

Studios remained in operation, but work admittedly was carried on by skeleton crews.

The CSU held tight to its hole card—a temporary award by the War Labor Board designating its painters' local as the bargaining agent for studio set decorators over the protests of the IATSE.

The IATSE, demanding that the producers recognize it as the agent for the decorators, continued to send its men past the CSU picket lines and offer the threat of pulling its projectionists and stagehands out of the nation's 18,000 movie theaters if its demands are not met.

Screen Actor Guild members will ballot by mail. Votes must be in by midnight next Tuesday.

Presidential Citation Given Bastogne Unit

SOMEWHERE IN WESTERN EUROPE, March 15.—(AP)—The 101st Airborne Division was awarded the first Presidential Citation to an entire Army Division today "for extraordinary heroism and gallantry" in its epic defense of Bastogne last December.

Gen. Eisenhower, who presented the award, said that "never before has a full division been cited by the War Department in the name of the President for gallantry in action. This marks the beginning of a new tradition in the American Army."

RED CROSS PAGES LT. SHAPINSKY

Red Cross officials at the Atlanta Ordnance depot are searching the city for Lt. Nathaniel Shapinsky, of Syracuse, N. Y., expected to arrive here Thursday afternoon.

Lt. Shapinsky is reported en route here by automobile with his wife who is seriously ill with a chronic disease. It is important that he communicate with the Red Cross immediately as they have an important message.

He is supposed to report to the depot as postal officer in the next three days. The message concerns his father and it is important Lt. Shapinsky get the message before his wife whose condition might be affected by the news, Red Cross officials said.

Fay and James Bove, AFL officials described by their trial justice as two of the nation's most powerful labor leaders, were convicted early today on one count of extortion and another of conspiracy to extort money from contractors on New York city's $300,000,000 Delaware water project.

Tag Delinquents Face Prosecution

In addition to two financial penalties, Georgia motorists who fail to apply for motor vehicle tags by April 1 are subject to criminal prosecution, according to State Revenue Commissioner J. Eugene Cook.

It is a misdemeanor to drive a vehicle on Georgia highways without a tag, Cook pointed out. Financial penalties for late applicants are 20 per cent of the purchase price and one dollar sheriff's costs.

The state revenue department had issued 366,082 tags through March 12 this year. A total of 483,971 were issued by April 1, 1944.

Approximate final total stock sales today, 250,000 shares; year ago, 332,820. Approximate final total bond sales today, $530,000; year ago, $873,000.

STOCK SALES

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Wide gains were achieved by rail and industrial specialties in today's stock market, although dealings were among the slowest for the past several months and most leaders did little or nothing.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .5 of a point at 61.7. Transfers totaled 800,000 shares compared with 750,000 the day before. Of 864 issues registering, 430 were up against 434 down or unchanged.

The bond market held a relatively steady undertone today as interest tended to broaden in a selected group of secondary rail loans and modest investment demand was evident in the higher-priced loans.

Lifted moderately in the Curb were Cuban Atlantic Sugar, International Petroleum, Lamson Corporation and United Cigar. Turnover here was 250,000 shares versus 230 yesterday.

Tag Delinquents Face Prosecution

In addition to two financial penalties, Georgia motorists who fail to apply for motor vehicle tags by April 1 are subject to criminal prosecution, according to State Revenue Commissioner J. Eugene Cook.

It is a misdemeanor to drive a vehicle on Georgia highways without a tag, Cook pointed out. Financial penalties for late applicants are 20 per cent of the purchase price and one dollar sheriff's costs.

The state revenue department had issued 366,082 tags through March 12 this year. A total of 483,971 were issued by April 1, 1944.

STOCK SALES

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Wide gains were achieved by rail and industrial specialties in today's stock market, although dealings were among the slowest for the past several months and most leaders did little or nothing.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .5 of a point at 61.7. Transfers totaled 800,000 shares compared with 750,000 the day before. Of 864 issues registering, 430 were up against 434 down or unchanged.

The bond market held a relatively steady undertone today as interest tended to broaden in a selected group of secondary rail loans and modest investment demand was evident in the higher-priced loans.

Lifted moderately in the Curb were Cuban Atlantic Sugar, International Petroleum, Lamson Corporation and United Cigar. Turnover here was 250,000 shares versus 230 yesterday.

$10,000,000 Said Needed For Asylum

MILLEDGEVILE, Ga., March 15.—Supt. Y. H. Yarbrough told a legislative investigating committee here today that it would take $10,000,000 to place the institution's old buildings in satisfactory condition.

As the solons neared completion of an inquiry, made at the request of the CIO, Hospital Engineer W. H. Curry reported the hospital has 21 large buildings for housing patients. He considered 11 of these in excellent condition, three in good condition, and the rest, all over 40 years old, in need of replacement or major renovation.

Dr. Yarbrough said that the number of doctors should be increased from nine to 40, and that many additions were needed for the staff of attendants and nurses. He added that the appropriation for operating costs ought to be increased from 68 cents per patient to $1.25 or $1.40 to provide the type of care that he would like the inmates to have.

ANSWERS CIO CHARGES

Answering CIO charges that a Negro patient was burned to death by steam escaping from a wornout pipe, Dr. C. G. Cox, clinical director, advised the legislators that the patient (Otis Owens Jr.) was smothered to death by steam last December. The steam seeped through the floor from the basement, into which water had leaked. The burns were not sufficient to cause death, Cox added. Yarbrough said the building should be torn down and replaced. Many window panes were broken out, and there were several gaping holes in the ceiling. Engineer Curry said 100 window panes a day were replaced throughout the institution but that even this was insufficient to keep up with the rate of breakage.

Dr. Cox said treatment of patients here "compared very favorably" with that provided by other states, although "we don't have the equipment some of the northern hospitals have."

Yarbrough said that while the institution might be able to use more food, "I don't think anybody is suffering from lack of food."

DEATH RATE UP

While the death rate has increased in the last three years, Dr. Cox observed that "we are now taking all that are committed, no matter how feeble. Some of them died within 24 hours of arrival." In the last fiscal year, he said, 700 of the approximately 8,500 patients died, as compared with 613 in the previous year and 464 two years ago.

Contending that the hospital provides medical care designed to help patients recover from their mental condition, Cox cited figures to show that 202 patients were "furloughed" as restored and 775 were "furloughed" as improved in the last fiscal year.

Everything is being done to give them the "best break," the chief of the Army Ground Forces said, emphasizing that the men are given 17 weeks' basic training in this country and additional training in rear areas overseas when possible.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Mary Jane Brock Enrolls At University of Mexico

Mrs. Pope Brock has just returned from Mexico, where she accompanied her daughter, Mary Jane, and remained with her in Mexico City until the latter was happily situated, both at school and at play.

Mary Jane has a wonderful six months in store. As you know, she was graduated from Sweetbriar College last spring, and having always been particularly interested in languages, she has enrolled at the University of Mexico, where she will study Mexican literature and preconquest history of Mexico, which deals with the archaeological discoveries of that country. Both of these subjects, of course, will be taught in Spanish. A unique thing about the university is that in the spring session most of the classes are taught in the evenings. Mary Jane's classes each meet twice a week, from 6 to 7 o'clock.

In order that she may imbibe as much of the Spanish language, customs and atmosphere as possible while she is in Mexico, Mary Jane is living in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Luis Renero Sanchez, natives of Mexico, who reside just around the corner from the American embassy. During her leisure she plans to study the Spanish language under a tutor so that she will be able, more easily, to follow her professors at the university.

Sally predicts that Mary Jane will have a gay social whirl, too, for there is quite a large colony of attractive Americans and Britishers living in the capital city, and numbers of them are already acquainted with Mary Jane through her father's connection with the Coca-Cola Company.

During Mrs. Brock's visit, she and Mary Jane went to the Alameda theater one afternoon. All of the movies are, of course, in Spanish. The film chanced to be one of Walt Disney's Donald Duck shorts. Its name was "Los Tres Caballeros" and, according to Mrs. Brock, the movie was as cute as could be and the theatergoers shrieked with laughter.

BOYS' HIGH SCHOOL IN LIFE

Do you remember an article which appeared in Life Magazine recently, dealing with the teen-age girl? Well, it won't be long, now, before Life will feature the teen-age boy. Representatives have been canvassing the various high schools of the United States, and the Atlanta Boys' High school has been selected as one of the most representative in this part of the country.

Dom Wyant and Johnny Lay, president and vice president, respectively, of the student body at Boys' High, were chosen to make a survey of the school and to find what their fellow students were thinking about.

Some of the questions asked, along a lighter vein, were: "Do you like to single-date or double-date? How do you feel about necking? Where do you go on dates? Do you have decorations in your room at home? Do you study in your own room? Do you like to tease your friends? If so, about what? What is the most popular sport? Do you participate in school activities?" And many others, having to do with home, school, hobbies, spare time, etc.

Sally is sure that the answers, gleaned from southern lads, will not only add spice, but enlightment, also, to the article. So be on the lookout for it!

HOST IN ABSENTIA

A day seldom passes that Sally doesn't hear of some kindness that has been extended to servicemen and women by Atlantans, but it's the exception, rather than the rule, to learn that some serviceman, deep in the thick of the fight on foreign soil, not only remembers his wife on their wedding anniversary, but, with thousands of miles intervening, plans a dinner party in her honor. And, in addition, he sends her a long list of presents, including 15 red roses and a huge purple orchid!

Dolly and Robert Wynne were married 15 years ago on Feb. 28, it seems, but Bob, who is a sergeant in the Air Sea Rescue boat crew, stationed in the Philippines, not being able to celebrate his crystal anniversary with Dolly, was not to be outdone. He wrote a letter to Dolly's close friend, Mrs. Jack Stephenson, and asked if she would do a bit of shopping for him and, incidentally, arrange a dinner party for Dolly.

Bob's gift list, together with a proposed menu for the dinner party, and a guest list, was inclosed in his letter to Mrs. Stephenson, who straightway went to work. As Dolly spends a large part of each day attending to her absent husband's business interests, Mrs. Stephenson had the run of her apartment. She and the Wynns' faithful cook fixed everything to a queen's taste, and not until the guests arrive did Dolly realize what was taking place. A few of her close friends, including Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Mackey, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Logan, Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, and Mrs. Robert Stephenson, were present, and, of course, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stephenson, who acted as hosts in Sgt. Wynn's absence. They presented Dolly with some beautiful pieces of Starlight crystal as an anniversary gift.

Flashlight pictures were taken and will be sent to Bob so that he can get a view of the party details and, at least, a faint idea of how much happiness he gave his wife on her 15th anniversary occasion.

BACKSTAGE
By Paul Jones

"Woman in the Window," the murder story which defied a group of Washington reporters and criminologists to provide its solution and which was screened here with the same result before a group of ace DeKalb county and Atlanta detectives, opened a week's engagement at the Fox theater last night.

That the sleuths were unable to guess—and I say guess because any answer approximating the right one would be a guess—is no reflection on the abilities of these law enforcers, because Atlanta's Nunnally Johnson, who produced the play, deliberately double-crosses the moviegoer with a trick ending which is fool proof.

In writing in this trick ending to the otherwise clever play, I think Johnson has placed the picture in the class with a comedy, with the laughs being on the audience. It certainly leaves the audience flat after a terrific build-up for approximately two hours.

Edward G. Robinson plays the role of the murderer and he plays it well. Joan Bennett, likewise, gives the role of the artists' model a lot of charm and her pretending is of the first order, too. There is no fault with the story in general. Its script is sophisticated and racy and the simple story is thoroughly entertaining, that is until it breaks the finishing tape.

EGR is seen as a psychology professor who stops at a store window to admire a portrait of a beautiful woman. Just then the woman, herself, peers over her shoulder and inquires if he'd like to see other works of the artist who did her portrait. He does, and the two are next seen in her apartment. An "unknown" man enters the apartment and attacks Robinson, who murders him in self-defense. They cover up the crime so perfectly that the detectives spend the greater portion of the film hunting for the real killer.

'Yukon' Film Colorful

"Belle of the Yukon, which opened yesterday at the Paramount, is just what it is intended to be—a tuneful, colorful opus with many a good laugh along the way and without the slightest intention of expecting anyone to take the humdrum story seriously.

For our money Dinah Shore's ear tickling warbling and Bob Burns' drawling humor make the picture worthy of good audiences. Randolph Scott and Gypsy Rose Lee do well enough as the guy and gal with pasts who have decided to take the straight and narrow.

The dialogue is snappy, clever and laugh provoking. The music and songs, especially those sung by Miss Shore, are strictly "among the best," and the costuming of the feminine principals and the chorus line, which includes several real beauties, is on the gorgeous side. All in all, "Belle of the Yukon" is light, frothy, tuneful and colorful escapist entertainment.

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—A large screen television receiver, designed with the postwar home in mind, was given a preview today. It reproduced a picture 16 x 21 1-3 inches.

The model was developed in the laboratories of the Radio Corporation of America, which joined with the National Broadcasting Company in the test.

While not ready for the public because civilian production must await the outcome of the war, it nevertheless was regarded by its designers as a basis for the peacetime receiver. Cost to the consumer was estimated at around $395, depending on market conditions.

Family Doesn't Miss Meat If Main Dish Is Shrimp

By SALLY SAVER.

Finding the meat shelves bare, more and more housewives are turning to fish and seafoods. Shrimp is an all-time favorite, and when it appears at mealtime the family never notices the absence of meat. Some canned shrimp is available, but more often it is necessary to buy green shrimp and prepare them at home. The green ones are best to me, but there's one drawback, which is the shelling and cleaning of them. But if you like shrimp you will find even that is worth doing.

TO COOK SHRIMP

Wash shrimp in cold water, then drop in rapidly boiling salted water, add 2 bay leaves, a stalk of celery and a sprig of parsley. Cook 15 to 20 minutes or until shells turn pink. Drain, cover with cold water to cool. When cool enough to handle, remove shells and the intestinal vein running along the back. Shrimps then are ready for cocktails, salads, or any cooked dish. Shrimps may be fried after precooking as above, or uncooked ones may be shelled, leaving tails on, and fried in deep hot fat. Or shrimps may be boiled as above, without adding vegetables; merely add salt to the water. One pound of green or fresh shrimp yields 2 cups cooked shrimp. Allow 2 pounds green shrimps for serving 6. These are excellent main dishes using shrimp.

- 1 cup grated cheese
- 4 cups cooked rice
- 1 cup sliced onions
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 3 tablespoons margarine or drippings
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon chili powder
- ½ cup diced green pepper
- 2½ cups cooked tomatoes
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 cups cooked shrimp

Cook onions and garlic in margarine until tender. Add flour, salt, sugar and chili powder, and blend. Add green pepper. Stir in tomatoes and lemon juice and cook 10 minutes over low heat. Add prepared shrimp and heat thoroughly. Meanwhile blend grated cheese with hot cooked rice and place in a greased casserole, leaving the center to be filled with shrimp. Arrange the creole shrimp in center, sprinkle lightly with grated cheese (this, of course, is optional in days of rationing) and place in oven or under broiler until cheese melts and the dish is hot.

SCALLOPED SHRIMP and EGGS

- 1½ cups prepared shrimp
- 4 eggs, hard cooked
- 1 green pepper
- 2 cups milk
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons margarine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon celery salt
- ½ cup grated cheese
- Bread or cracker crumbs

Remove stem from pepper, cut in half and drop in boiling water for five minutes, then cut in thin strips. Make a sauce of melted margarine and flour blended in, and milk. Cook until smooth and thickened, and add seasonings, salt, pepper and celery salt. In a large greased baking dish arrange a layer of shrimp, cover with layer of sliced hard cooked eggs, strips of green pepper, crumbs and white sauce. Repeat these layers until all ingredients are used, top with grated cheese or buttered crumbs and bake in 425-degree oven 10 or 15 minutes or until well heated.

LOUELLA PARSONS REPORTS:

Story of Dorsey Brothers To Be Strictly Musical

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.—(INS)—I don't know whether Charlie Rogers plans to tell all, when he films the life story of Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey. I reckon not, since this is to be strictly a modern musical, to be made with a budget of $200,000.

The story is the life of the two Dorseys and the title is "My Brother Leads a Band." Both the boys and their bands will be in the film and will play the most popular hit tunes of their careers, such as "Marie," "Song of India," "Green Eyes" and others.

There's nothing like finding story material in your own family. Rosalind Russell's sister, Mrs. Chet La Roche, wife of a radio official, has written a book called "The Duchess," based on her life. No, the lady isn't royalty but everyone in the family has called her "The Duchess" since she was a little girl, so that's how the title was born. Roz wants to do it as a movie.

I thought I had never seen William Powell look so swell as he did at the party Charlie Morrison gave for Dora's birthday at their Beverly Hills hotel bungalow. I said to him, "You must feel awfully well." "Oh, it's just a little desert tan," he answered. I had met his mother the day before in the bank and she told me that Bill was feeling grand again.

I hadn't seen Errol Flynn since his much advertised Mexican episode when I met him at the Charlie Morrisons' party. He is still being very cagey about his marriage to Nora Eddington, but he tells me that their baby is the cutest thing he has ever seen. He said she has the prettiest little nose and looks just like a doll. No father ever made a statement with more pride than Errol. He also told me about Sean, his son by Lili Damita. The little boy came to see him in Palm Beach and they had gone in swimming, and had had a marvelous time. "He really tries to charm people," Errol said. "I suppose you don't," I answered.

Veterans' Postwar Notebook

By MAJ. THOMAS M. NIAL

Because of some words in the GI bill which come out like the sound of a machinegun, there has been debate.

You see, part of the title and chapter of the law dealing with education says that any veteran (otherwise eligible) "whose education or training was impeded, delayed, interrupted, or interfered with by reason of his entrance into the service—shall be entitled to receive education or training."

The rapid-fire verbs probably aren't necessary because you and I and anybody but a lawyer would think they all mean the same thing. Any one of them would have been enough, since the book says they're all synohymns.

Still, the provision is important, because it would seem to disqualify any ex-service man who was not actually attending some school or course of training when he entered the service. But after one of the "provided furthers" down at the end of this particular long paragraph, it says "That any such person who was not over 25 years of age at the time he entered the service shall be deemed to have had his education or training impeded—etc. —." So if you were not over 25 when you entered, the law says your education was impeded and you won't have to prove it.

Now, I thought that a veteran who hadn't reached his 26th birthday when he entered would come under this provision. But H. V. Stirling, of the Veterans' Administration, tells me no. There's been an interpretation on this. A person is 25 on his 25th birthday. The day after, he is over 25—and therefore doesn't come under the provision which automatically classes him as having had his education or training impeded.

But if you were over 25 on entrance, or even in your early thirties, you could still qualify under the full provisions for veteran education, if you can show the Veterans' Administration that your civilian training or education had been hampered by your entrance into the service.

Along in the middle of the same paragraph I've been talking about appear the words "or who desires a refresher or retraining course." And that causes some argument.

It isn't too hard to understand what is meant by a refresher course. It's a reminder course—a course that might be needed by a veteran who had been away from his regular civilian occupation or profession for a long time. Perhaps, he's forgotten much—grown rusty—so he needs a training course—a refresher—to get him back on the beam.

But what's a "retraining course"?

Let's suppose a veteran was a stenographer before he was enticed into the service. While serving, he got some mechanical experience. When he gets out, stenography seems too lily-like, maybe, but he would like to be a typewriter repairman. So he applies for a training course in typewriter repair. OK. Seems to be "retraining."

But suppose the same veteran wanted to train as a radio repairman? Is that "retraining"? Some say no—it has no connection with his prewar civilian occupation. But others say yes—he trained as a stenographer, now he wants to be "retrained" as a radio man.

The question hasn't exactly been settled. But I'm sure that any reasonable course (not over one year) will be held to be "retraining." And therefore, regardless of the veteran's age or whether or not his education was impeded by entrance into the service, he will be entitled to up to one year in the government's educational scheme for veterans.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—There is likely to be a widespread feeling of restlessness and of being unsettled around today. Do not make changes, especially changes that involve your base of operation, or home conditions, for your mind is not functioning at its best, and changes made today may only lead to further ones.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—Previous to 2:31 p. m. is an auspicious date for matters concerning land, mines, property, home affairs and domestic interests. In the afternoon push affairs already started for you may be careless, extravagant, or use bad judgment in new beginnings.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Previous to 10:01 a. m. continue with matters already started, as well as matters related to progressive works, humanitarian ideas, and contact people who are interested in new ideas and unusual methods. After 10:01 a. m. does not favor new undertakings.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Before 10:05 a. m. avoid changes, look out for quick action that may lead to accidents and hold your temper. Between 10:05 a. m. and 5:05 p. m. you may have a peculiar turn in your affairs for good but see that you do not overspend, or overestimate where finances are concerned.

July 23-Aug. 22 (LEO)—You can appeal to others previous to 12 noon, so push matters involving friendships, seek favors and attend to personal interests. In the afternoon hours, it will be well to take a calm view of matters, as you may not be sure what you want.

Aug. 23-Sept. 22 (VIRGO)—This is likely to be an eventful day, bringing both discord and harmony. Avoid restlessness and you can attain good results in those things of an unselfish nature. Some turn in your affairs may be expected today for the better, but stick to conservatism.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—A beneficial day for working on some old plan, idea or change that has been moving slowly, or which has been meeting hindrances, although you may meet with restrictions that discourage you. Hold your chin up and keep plugging.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—Minor affairs in your life may bring you in contact with people who are erratic or touchy during the entire day, but work that demands endurance and sustained action may be well transacted. More satisfaction and profit will be gained by attending to work that keeps you in the background.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—The entire day suggests that you control self and act with much discretion and caution, for the predominating influences are such that easily bring arguments, disputes, accidents and impulsive talking. The day does not favor new beginnings.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—You should be able to think clearly and calmly before 12:10 noon, which will enable you to make fast movements and give an intelligent direction to your efforts. Between 12:10 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. favors dealings with people engaged in steel, those who are considered hard boiled, but be sure to deal with them in a straight-forward way.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—You may have a letdown feeling, and be inclined to moods before 12:20 p. m. Between 12:20 p. m. and 5:54 p. m. business matters, financial matters, dealings with educators, for selling and trading. After 5:54 p. m. favors mechanical and industrial ideas.

Feb. 19-March 10 (PISCES)—Previous to 11:25 a. m. favors attending to necessary tasks and attempting nothing important. Between 11:25 a. m. and 2:51 p. m. do all you can to make connections secure and lasting, and if you have any connection with matters of a public nature, now would be the time for success. After 2:51 p. m. avoid radical changes.

Full-Time Chief Authorized for Alto Sanatorium

The State Board of Health has authorized employment of a full-time medical director to have over-all charge of the Alto tuberculosis sanitarium.

The action followed recommendations of a legislative committee which investigated the institution recently.

Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, state health officer, said yesterday he had not selected a director but would issue a statement after a special committee appointed by the board meets at Alto next Thursday.

Crimean Charter Invoked by U. S. In Romanian Row

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP). The United States invoked the Crimean charter today in an effort to prevent Romania from falling completely into the hands of a Communist minority.

Under apparent Russian pressure, the Romanian government of Premier Nicolai Radescu was overthrown on the last day of February and succeeded March 6 by the administration of Premier Petru Groza of the Communist-controlled National Democratic front.

The United States action was disclosed in an official but incomplete announcement from a State Department spokesman:

"The American representatives in Romania have of course kept the department informed of recent developments in that country. We think that some aspects of the political situation require consultation among the three principal Allies and we are discussing this situation with the British and Soviet governments."

The statement was issued in response to inquiries. Elsewhere it was learned that the call for consultation is based on the agreements to protect the political integrity of liberated and former Axis satellite countries which President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill made at the Crimean Conference little more than a month ago. That agreement provides for joint action whenever the Allies find it necessary to inject themselves into a country's politics.

It was considered entirely possible that as a result of the discussions, the Big Three might decide to create a joint commission to deal with Romanian affairs.

Foreign Minister Eden publicly told commons this week what had been commonly talked in secret by Allied diplomats for many days—that it was the Moscow government, acting without consultation with the United States and Britain, which ousted the Radescu administration and helped set up the present regime.

Two Passengers Hurt As Royal Palm Derails

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 15.—(AP)—Two passengers were injured slightly today when the Southern Railway's Royal Palm, Cincinnati-to-Jacksonville train, was derailed near Lenox, Ga.

The engine and four coaches cleared the broken tracks, six Pullmans were derailed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Tudor, Cincinnati, were taken to a Tifton hospital, where physicians said they had suffered only bruises and shock.

WILSON'S WEEKLY Bulletin

By George Rector
Food and Nutrition Consultant to Wilson & Co.

TAKE A LESSON IN FLAVOR

How fortunate we are that so many of the low-point and point-free meats are so delicious. Favorites of mine among these point-thrifty cuts are beef short ribs, ox-joints, heart, tongue, sweetbreads and kidneys. A study of the point value chart will show many other point bargains. Short ribs and ox-joints when browned to perfection to develop their best flavor and then cooked with a little moisture are particularly delicious, as every good cook knows.

BRAISED SHORT RIBS . . . A CHEF'S DELIGHT

3 lbs. short ribs
2 tbsp. Advance Shortening
2 tsp. salt
hot water
6 potatoes
6 parsnips
6 onions
4 tbsp. flour
Wilson's B-V

Brown both sides of the meat in the hot fat. Season with salt, add ½ cup hot water, cover and simmer gently 3 to 3½ hours or until tender, turning meat occasionally and adding small amounts of water as needed. About 45 min. before meat is done add whole vegetables, rolling them around in the drippings occasionally; when tender, remove meat and vegetables to a hot platter. Measure liquid and add hot water to make 2 cups. Thicken with flour and add as much B-V as needed to give desired color and flavor. Serves 6.

Clip Recipe Here

Vegetables Steal Flavor

A considerable amount of that delicious brown flavor in the meat drippings is absorbed by the vegetables while they are cooking. But why should you care? It makes the vegetables delectable and you can put delicious meat flavor right back into the gravy by adding Wilson's B-V. And that's mighty important, because it's the good rich brown gravy that makes this dish so popular. Make plenty of B-V gravy so your family can enjoy that old favorite, bread and gravy.

MARCH IS NATIONAL BREAD & GRAVY MONTH

Add cole slaw and a simple dessert such as baked custard along with a beverage and you have a meal which will rate an encore from the family.

The supply of meat is low these days because of the increased demands of the Government. We are glad to share it with our boys and others who have been suffering hardships.

On days when your meat supply is low and you extend the meat flavor by means of rice, bread crumbs, macaroni, etc., be sure to add an extra amount of high quality protein in another meal by using point-free Clear Brook Eggs. Omelets and souffles are easy to make if one takes the time to master them. Deviled, scrambled, shirred, poached and fried eggs are equally good and require less care in preparation.

PLAN FOR EASTER

It would be wise to order your Easter meat now to avoid disappointment on that joyous day. By ordering now, large families may be able to get a Wilson's Certified Tender Made Ham (the original ready-to-eat ham) or a Certified Smoked Ham (which you cook at home), while small families will enjoy a slice of either of these two delicious hams. For those who cannot find ham, lamb or veal would be a happy choice.

Cordially yours,
GEORGE RECTOR

BELGIAN SOIL SACRED

No GIs Buried in Germany

HENRI CHAPELLE, Belgium, March 15.—(AP)—No American soldier is being buried by the Army in German soil.

The largest military cemetery on the western front—probably the largest ever built for an American overseas army—lies in green rolling hills here some six miles from Aachen, first large German city taken by the Allies.

Since last Sept. 7 this peaceful pasture land where Belgian cattle grazed only a few miles from the German border, has been crisscrossed by row after row of crosses marking the graves of several thousand American dead. There are also 138 Allied dead of other nationalities and 8,883 Germans.

Great Future in Radio Is Seen for Women

International broadcasting after the war will create one of the most promising fields for women—particularly as continuity and news writers, Mrs. J. Helen Stanley, director of radio education at the University of Alabama, said here yesterday.

With 23 of CBS's 25 writers women, Mrs. Stanley believes that writing rather than speaking will give women a chance to "stick their foot in the door" of radio work now and during the post-war changes.

She was in Atlanta as guest of the Women's Radio Guild which celebrated the 23d anniversary of radio broadcasting in Georgia. Nationally, March marks the 25th year of radio transmission.

In conjunction with the luncheon and other ceremonies commemorating the occasion, Women's Radio Guild members revealed plans now under way for compiling a history of radio broadcasting in the state.

Hangman's Successor Arms Roads to Berlin

LONDON, March 15.—(AP)—The Moscow radio said today that Ernest Kaltenbrunner, former Quisling minister of public security in Austria and right-hand man to Heinrich Himmler, had been made a colonel general and named a commander of German troops on the approaches to Berlin.

Kaltenbrunner, a young Austrian, is the successor of the late Hangman Heydrich as chief of German security police.

The Moscow broadcast said Himmler was systematically purging German army officers and superimposing his own SS command to enforce the Nazi will to resist, and that Kaltenbrunner's appointment was a part of that policy.

New Bulletproof Panel Placed in Navy Fighters

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 15.—(AP) Navy fighter planes are now equipped with a bulletproof glass "sighting panel" which gives pilots a decided advantage over enemy fliers in fighting at night, in cloudy weather and other periods of low visibility, the Libby-Owens-Ford Glass Company announced today.

The panel is said to give armor protection along with greatly increased visibility and sighting accuracy. Its development eliminated a reflector plate formerly used for sighting.

Georgia Chapters Join Red Cross Van

The drive of eight southeastern states to raise their $17,000,000 share of the nation's $200,000,000 goal in the 1945 American Red Cross War Fund campaign today received fresh impetus, with many chapters in the area reporting over the top and two of the largest chapters announcing their local quotas well exceeded, John C. Wilson, manager of the southeastern area office in Atlanta, said.

In Charlotte, N. C., and Tampa, Fla., quotas have been oversubscribed, and Georgia chapters that added their names to the over-the-top list include: Americus and Sumter county, Griffin, Henry county, Lee county, McDuffie county, Mitchell county, Rockmart, Montezuma and Macon county, Rockdale county, Trion, Thomas county and Hall county.

Unfit Overseas Fighters Irk Navy Department

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(UP)—Many physically unfit men are being sent overseas for naval duty and the Navy Department says this must stop.

It was disclosed tonight that the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and the Bureau of Naval Personnel have sent a joint memorandum to all ships and stations telling them what to do.

"Numerous reports of receipts of men in the overseas areas who are not physically qualified to perform all of their duties have been received by the Bureau of Naval Personnel," said the memorandum, which then directed:

"In view of the transportation involved, the unwarranted burden of medical facilities in advanced areas and the present congestion of men awaiting medical or dental treatment in those areas, it is extremely urgent that steps be taken to prevent transferring such men overseas."

The memorandum reminded that the "primary" responsibility for the correction of physical defects is that of the commanders of the naval training centers at which recruits receive their initial training.

But the "final" responsibility, it adds, belongs to whoever has control of personnel at the port of embarkation.

One Duelist Near Death, Other Is Recovering

Hugh Peek, 41, Fayette county merchant-farmer, was near death in Grady hospital last night, and his uncle, John C. Askew, 61, retired Atlanta policeman, is recovering from gunshot wounds at Georgia Baptist hospital as result of a gun duel near Fayetteville late Wednesday.

Sheriff W. J. Ballard said the shooting grew out of a dispute between the two men over pasture lands. Both men were wounded in a gun battle at the Peek store on Senoia road.

Churchill Sees Reich's Fall Before End of Summer

LONDON, March 15.—(AP)—The war in Europe might well end "before summer ends or even sooner," Prime Minister Churchill told a conference of the Conservative party today.

"Victory lies before us—certain and perhaps near," he declared.

In making his prediction on the defeat of Germany Churchill pointed out that with it "war conditions will no longer prevent, as they have hitherto prevented, the holding of a general election," Britain's first since 1935.

He said the Liberal and Labor parties had indicated that they would resume their liberty of action in that election and end the coalition government of which he is head.

Therefore, Churchill declared, the Conservative party must consider the issue of the election to come and he drew it clearly as a show-down fight between forces of the right and left.

The prime minister demanded a future of 'free enterprise" for Britain and exhorted the Conservatives to stand firm against economic programs of nationalization "borrowed from foreign lands and alien minds" and against the ideas of the "stay-at-home left-wing intelligentsia."

Saying "it is no cheap-jack Utopia of airy phrases that lies before us," Churchill asserted the Conservative party would be better off going down to defeat telling the truth than gaining "a span of shabbily bought office by easy and fickle froth and chatter."
